ANGLO-FRENCH DEBT CONFERENCE OPENS IN LONDON

Caillaux to Present "a Gentleman's Agreement" to Churchill on Funding of $3,115,000,000.

DIVERGENCE OVER ANNUAL PAYMENTS

Great Britain Said to Expect $105,000,000 Yearly While Paris May Offer Only $50,000,000.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The French Finance Minister, M. Caillaux and the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Winston Churchill today began discussion of terms for settlement of France's debt to England, amounting to $623,000,000 ($115,000,000). M. Caillaux before the meeting told the newspaper men he was hopeful of an agreement.

Today's conversations between the two Ministers were expected to review the ground covered by the experts during the London conference of last month which broke up when it seemed impossible to reach an agreement as to the amount of France's annual payments.

It was understood at that time that there was wide divergence between the British desires and the French offers. The British were reported to have asked the payment of about $120,000,000 ($115,000,000) annually, while the French said they were only able to offer less than half this amount.

In official circles it is believed that the visit here of M. Caillaux and his personal discussions with Churchill will bring these figures closer together and quite probably effect a definite and workable agreement.

Caillaux to Make Report.
No time has been set for the opening of the conference and speculations as to the length varies from three days to a week or more. In any case the talks will not finally settle the question, for Caillaux will make a report to this government before any decision is taken.

Recent statements in the French press have created the opinion that France is not prepared to consider the payment of anything like the yearly sum which Great Britain mentioned as being acceptable when the French financial experts were here recently.

It is suggested that this might be increased if France were able to make an advantageous arrangement with the United States respecting her debt to that country.

Comment of Newspapers.
Asked by the Daily Mail whether he expected to go to the United States to discuss the French debt, M. Caillaux replied: "I really don't know. It all depends on what happens in London."

In today's comment by the London newspapers stress is laid on Great Britain's having canceled more than 50 per cent of her allowance requiring only enough to enable her to cover her own indebtedness to the United States.

BUSINESS MAN ADMITS $28,000 BANK HOLDUP

Dayton, O., Manufacturer Says He Turned Robber Because of Financial Troubles.

By the Associated Press.
DAYTON, O., Aug. 24.—Fred Nichol, Dayton manufacturer, was arrested by detectives today and is said to have admitted he was the blue-masked, blue-robed man who robbed employees of the North Dayton Branch of the Dayton Savings Bank and Trust Co., escaping with $28,000, Aug. 14.

Nichol said he remained in the rear room of the bank until the employees arrived. After they had opened the vaults, Nichol said, he confronted them and locked them in the cage after which he took the money.

Nichol is president of a local manufacturing concern bearing his name. He told detectives that he had turned robber because of financial difficulties. He said he was compelled to raise money; that he conceived the idea of robbing the bank and purchased the blue material of which his robe and mask were made and the gray kid gloves, which concealed his hands.

The clew, which led to Nichol's arrest was the presence of his adopted daughter, Miss Helen Sammet, an employee of the bank at the time of the holdup. Methods employed by the robber were so weird that it deterred the police from investigating the Nichol clew, they had no information on which to base their investigation.

Nichol used his own automobile, a coach, to make his getaway from the bank. After obtaining the loot, he drove into the country where he burned the blue robe, mask and gray gloves. Nichol, who is a lifelong resident of Dayton, said he broke into the bank through a rear door at 4 o'clock on the morning of the robbery.

While the robbery was being sought by police in automobiles and by an officer of McCook Field in an airplane, Nichol said, he was driving aimlessly through the country surrounding Dayton. His purpose, he said, was to throw pursuers off his trail. Then, he said, he took only bills of high denomination. He threatened to lock the seven employees in the huge vault on the main floor of the institution. The frightened employees, five men and two girls, including Miss Sammet, pleaded with the robber for mercy. He then locked only a grating of the vault, walked into the directors' room near the vault, counted the money and escaped. Nichol had two revolvers.

Nichol's place of business is directly across the street from the bank.

Detectors searched the Nichol home this morning and found the money concealed in Nichol's bedroom. He took only bills of high denomination. He threatened to lock the seven employees in the huge vault on the main floor of the institution. The frightened employees, five men and two girls, including Miss Sammet, pleaded with the robber for mercy. He then locked only a grating of the vault, walked into the directors' room near the vault, counted the money and escaped. Nichol had two revolvers.

Miss Wills won the second and third set and the match, 3-6, 6-0, 6-2.

By the Associated Press.
FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 24.—The first international battle for the American women's tennis championship took place today when Helen Wills, youthful defending titleholder, met her British opponent, Kathleen McKane, in the final round of the thirty-eighth annual tournament.

More than 5000 persons were in the big West Side Club's stadium when the rivals came out to face a cordon of cameramen, then engage in a practice session.

The championship cup rested on a table near the center court, flanked by a huge bouquet of roses.

The sun beat down on the green enclosure, but playing conditions were ideal, with scarcely a breeze stirring.

Miss Wills began service. She forced Miss McKane to err on the first point with the force of her shots, but then lost four in a row and the game as the British girl placed her returns accurately.

VEILED PROPHET TO BE HERE ON OCT. 6 AND 7

Parade and Ball Will Be Held on Successive Nights. Latter at Coliseum.

The Veiled Prophet's parade will be held six weeks from tomorrow night, Tuesday night, Oct. 6. The prophet's ball, in the Coliseum, will take place the following night, Oct. 7.

Separation of the parade and ball dates was tried last year, and proved satisfactory, as the parade was unhurried, and the ball was not subject to the long waits of former years.

The Coliseum arena, which is now in use as a swimming pool, will be covered with a special hardwood dancing floor, supported by steel props and heavy timbers.

Plans for making both the parade and the ball as beautiful and attractive as in any past year, and for bringing large numbers of out-of-town visitors here, are being made by the Business Men's Committee in charge of the fall events.

Season to Open Downtown.
The season will be opened Sept. 6, with "White Cargo," in the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, and shows will open soon. They are being booked there until Nov. 1, when the transfer will be made to the Grand-Olive district. This will be a departure in the theatrical circles here, as it will be the first time that a big legitimate theater has been in the popular movie-vault-stock company center.

Space now occupied by the Shubert-Jefferson Theater is to be converted into additional offices and display rooms for the Union Electric Light and Power Co., at the expiration of the lease. The Shuberts had planned to build a new theater at the southeast corner of Thirteenth and St. Charles streets, in the proposed Hotel Jefferson annex, but so far have not been able to complete financial arrangements for it.

GUN EXPLODES AT CAMP, KILLING SIX GUARDSMEN

20 Members of Illinois Negro Regiment Injured When Howitzer Bursts at Rockford.

DEFECTIVE SHELL CAUSES ACCIDENT

Dead Includes Captain of Company—15 Onlookers Are Burned in Sham Gas Attack.

By the Associated Press.
ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 24.—Six soldiers are dead and between 20 and 30 injured, many seriously, from the bursting of a howitzer in the Eighth Infantry Regiment area at Camp Grant early this afternoon. The Eighth is a negro organization, training with other troops at the annual National Guard encampment.

The identified dead: Capt. Cassius Browning, commanding the howitzer company, Eighth Infantry.

Corp. Henry Williams, Ren Anderson, Herbert Dugan, Delmes Campbell, Charles Wright, privates, all of Chicago.

Fifteen of the injured men were removed to Rockford hospitals. All the dead and injured are negroes. The accident occurred just as the men were completing their morning's firing on the Camp Grant range.

A defective shell is believed to have exploded.

The injured includes: Lieut. Samuel G. Harris, abdominal wounds; Sergt. Geter, severe leg injuries; Private Todd Morley, right arm amputated; Private James B. Cox, back torn; Allen Williams, 12 years old, arm amputated; Private Charles Baynes, probably fatally injured.

Fifteen persons were burned, one seriously, when a phosphorus grenade fired by troops during a demonstration of chemical warfare at Camp Grant yesterday landed in a group of spectators.

Leo Flanders, 20 years old, Rockford, was critically burned. The other 14 persons received first-aid treatment at the camp hospital and returned to their homes.

Dorr & Zeller Catering Company Loses $1000 to Youths Who Escape in Stolen Auto.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The MacMillan Arctic expedition has begun its retreat southward from Etah, Greenland, and yesterday morning arrived at Igloo Houny, Greenland.

In a message sent yesterday and received at the Navy Department today, Lieutenant Commander Byrd, commanding the navy section, said:

"Early arrived Igloo Houny at 2:45 a. m. with (airplanes) NA-2 and NA-3. NA-1 was hoisted aboard this afternoon with wings dismantled. Commander MacMillan has decided not to do any more exploring in this region. 'Chief boob swain has come off the sick list and all naval personnel is well.' Igloo Houny is a trading station on Murchison Sound, about 100 miles south of Etah."

In a message to the National Geographic Society, sent from Pandora Harbor, just south of Etah, the expedition said it was bound for Disko, Greenland, where it coaled on its trip northward.

From there, easy access can be gained to the ancient Norse ruins at Gøthaven, Greenland, which the explorers expect to study.

Manager Covered.
"You go back here with us," said one of the men, displaying an automatic pistol. The robbers marched the manager into the office and ordered him, French and a clerk, Agnes Rempe, to stand with their faces to the wall. The other robber also showed an automatic.

The money lay in heaps on the table, and the robber scooped it up and threw it into a black leather satchel, which was on the floor. The satchel belonged to Brennan, but had been used by French on a recent outing and he had taken it to the office, empty, to return it to Brennan.

After cleaning up on the house money, the robbers demanded from Brennan and French their belongings, and took $40 from Brennan, and French's revolver, which was loaded, but which he had had no chance to use. They also took keys belonging to both men.

Make Escape in Auto.
When the robbers departed, Brennan followed them and saw them run through an alley and to Broadway, where they jumped into a Ford roadster, in which two men were already sitting. The car went south.

The money, which was in currency, was insured.

Robbers, on a night visit to the Grand Opera House office, Nov. 28, 1920, took $4800, after threatening to blow up the office with the contents of a bottle, which they said contained nitroglycerin. The bottle, which was left behind, was found to contain sweet spirits of niter.

$3725 Stolen in Holdup in New Company Garage.
In the robbery of the People's Motorbus Co. garage at 532 Delmar boulevard at 5 a. m. today two robbers took $3725.95 in receipts from a safe and kidnapped an employee, who was driven downtown in their automobile and ejected at a point two blocks from Police Headquarters.

The police have had information that a robbery at the garage was planned, and patrolmen on the beat had been instructed to watch it closely. On his way to work there early today, Joseph H. McCann, a dispatcher, met a policeman, who reported all was well. The policeman accompanied McCann to the garage and then walked on.

McCann, the first employee to arrive, was busy a few minutes later in an outer office when he heard an automobile drive in. He supposed it was an employee's car, until a man, carrying a revolver in his right hand and a suit case in the left hand, strode into the office.

Three of Navy's Sea Craft Reach San Francisco, Where Start Is to Be Made.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—The three United States naval seaplanes which will attempt a nonstop flight to Honolulu from here, arrived yesterday. Two of the planes, the PN-9 No. 1 and the PN-9 No. 3, came from San Diego, one of them making a nonstop voyage. The third, the PB-1, came from Coos Bay, Oregon. The two PN-9 planes left San Diego at 7:14 a. m. The PN-3 completed a nonstop flight, arriving here at 3 p. m. The PN-9 No. 1 made a forced landing at about 9:30 a. m. when she developed an oil leak. Repairs were soon made and the craft landed here shortly before 6 o'clock.

Leaving Coos Bay, Oregon, at 8:30, the PB-1 landed at Crissy Field at 2:30 p. m. This plane attempted to make a nonstop run from Seattle but was forced to land at Neah Bay, Washington, with a broken oil feed line. After being repaired she flew to Coos Bay, where she spent the night.

The PN-9 No. 3 brought Capt. Sanford Moses, flight project commander. She was piloted by Lieut. Allen Snoddy and Arthur Cavin. The PB-1 was in charge of Lieutenant Commander J. H. Strong, assisted by Lieut. Rico Botta and Ralph E. Davidson, with Capt. L. M. Wilson as a passenger.

THE TWO SUMMER WHITE HOUSE
GUARDS FACE COURT MARTIAL

One Marine Was Found Asleep on Duty by Officer of the Guard—Another Left His Post.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Two marines of the special detail assigned to guard the summer White House were found asleep at their posts of duty early this morning.

Charges of neglect of duty have been preferred against them and Capt. Adolphus Andrews, the President's naval aid, has ordered an investigation.

Lieut. J. E. Wright, in charge of the detail, inspected guard posts early this morning and it is understood he reported that one marine had left his post and that another was asleep on duty.

A detail of 18 marines has kept a 24-hour watch on White House this summer, adding the ceremonial in protecting the President.

Former U. S. Boxer Wins
HIGH HONORS AT OXFORD

OXFORD, England, Aug. 24.—E. P. F. Eagen of Colorado, former Yale student, who was given a Rhodes scholarship after he had won most of the championships open to heavyweight boxers, has finished his course in law at Oxford and is off with his friend, the Maharajah of Ceylon, for a trip around the world.

"Eddie" graduated with high honors at the university.

Known as a man of pleasing personality and of quiet and modest bearing, Eagen made hosts of friends among Englishmen of all classes.

Tom Webster, the noted cartoonist, made him the subject of one of his most amusing sketches. The Prince of Wales once had him to dinner as his personal guest.

AMERICANS DISCARD SPATS

Tourists Leave Footwear in London Hotels on Sailing Home.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 24.—Thousands of American tourists who visited London, spent their money freely and now are homeward bound will not be easily forgotten, because they have left a plague of "spats" behind them.

The visitors, on their arrival, were told that it was the correct thing to wear spats, and spats were bought to match each suit they purchased. Considering that they would have no use for such things at home, they packed their baggage and left the spats behind.

Hotel proprietors have set aside space for the discarded footwear for such a time as arrangements can be made for second sales.

THREE PERSONS DROWNED WHEN CANOE CAPSIZE

Two Young Men and Woman Victims of Mishaps in the Meramec—Four Others Saved.

CRAFTS ARE UPSET BY SHIFTING WEIGHT

One Party Thought Their Companions on Picnic Outing on River Had Called for Help.

Two young men and a young woman were drowned in the Meramec River Saturday night and yesterday, as a result of moving in canoes, causing them to capsize. Coroner's verdicts of accident were returned today in all cases. Those drowned were:

Miss Catherine Fisher, 25 1/2 years old, of 439 W. Papin street.

Phil E. Walker, 22, of Long Beach, opposite Meramec Highlands.

Anthony Beresky, 21, of 1402 A Newhouse avenue.

Woman Shifted Weight, Causing Canoe to Overturn.

A canoe in which Miss Fisher and Walker were riding when it overturned Saturday night, was being used as a ferry to carry them and Walker's brother and sister across the Meramec River at Meramec Highlands. It contained, the survivors told authorities, when Miss Fisher became frightened and shifted her weight in the little craft, turning it over.

The occupants fell in 10 feet of water running with a fair current, a short distance above the big bend of the river. Miss Fisher threw her arms about Walker in the water and in their struggles both were drowned. The others, Teddy Walker, 17, and Miss Theresa Walker, 20, held fast to the overturned canoe and were rescued by a fisherman in a flatboat. The party had been at a Meramec Highlands dance hall and were returning to the home of Walker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Walker, at Long Beach, a clubhouse center, opposite the Highlands.

Early yesterday the two bodies were recovered at the bottom of the river.

Miss Fisher, who was a waitress in the Scruggs-Vanderbilt-Sarnoff room, and Miss Walker, resided with a sister of Miss Fisher. They had gone to Long Beach for the weekend, during which time Miss Walker was to deliver a speech to accompany her brother, Phil, on a trip to California, which he planned to start today. Miss Fisher was an orphan. She is survived by three brothers and a sister. Her funeral will be at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday, from the residence, with services at St. Cronan's Catholic Church and burial in Calvary cemetery.

Walker conducted an ice route in the clubhouse district of the Meramec River, near his home. His funeral will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow from an undertaking establishment in Kirkwood, with burial in Oak Hill cemetery, Kirkwood.

Second Party Thought Companions Called for Help.

Beresky, an automobile mechanic, had gone with a number of young men and women to a picnic on the river bank just below Fenton. He thought some of his companions swimming in the stream some distance from shore cried for help, about 2:30 p. m. He started to their assistance in a canoe, accompanied by Miss Blanche Tucker of the Queen's Daughters, home, 3722 Lindell boulevard, and Richard Kuernan of 1401 North Park street.

All three wore street clothing. They found that Beresky was mistaken about the calls for help, and as they started back for shore, Miss Tucker and Kuernan shifted their positions in the canoe, causing it to capsize. Other members of the picnic party rescued Miss Tucker and Kuernan, but were unable to save Beresky, who was drowned in a deep section of the water. Miss Tucker swallowed a considerable amount of water and was revived with some difficulty.

Beresky's body was recovered with grappling hooks by Deputy Sheriff Slevin and Barker.

DOCTOR'S CARD PARTY HELD UP

A card party in the basement of the home of Dr. Marion J. Yount, 4209 Arco avenue, was interrupted at 12:10 a. m. yesterday by a knock on the door. Dr. Yount and masked men entered and opened the door and three armed men entered and three armed men entered and three armed men entered.

The players were robbed as follows: Dr. Yount, $4; Gus Medley, 4209 Arco, $40; William Walker, 1099 South Taylors avenue, $14; Fred Easters, 4133 Delmar boulevard, $20.

WOMAN "PARTNER" IS GONE, ALSO HIS $1000

Man Tells Police of an Agreement to Finance Purported Business Deal.

A newspaper advertisement for a business partner, one with a little capital to finance a business transaction with the Government, interested Frederick W. Ziem of 6819 Marquette avenue, when he read it two weeks ago. So he decided to investigate.

He went to the address mentioned, 2324 Delmar boulevard, and there met a comely woman of about 52, of good business address, who said she was Mrs. E. H. Roth. She explained the proposition and had made the business transaction to furnish a disinfectant of a special quality. There would be no orders, big profits for the both of them, and all she needed was capital.

To make the business transaction complete she insisted upon a partnership agreement, which was witnessed before a notary. Then Ziem advanced $1000. That was last Wednesday. "Come back Saturday and we'll begin business," the woman partner said.

Ziem went to the house Saturday and learned the woman had left hurriedly Friday, saying she has been called East. The proprietor of the rooming house, at the address, said she had stopped there about five weeks, her origin being unknown. Then Ziem visited Police Headquarters and related his story.

The armed man nodded toward an inner office, and ordered McCann to "open the safe."

"I mean the safe," said the man, "you did," the robber said, when McCann hesitated. He then followed McCann to the other office, prodding him in the back with the revolver. McCann opened the safe, which contained receipts from the Delmar line for Saturday night and Sunday, coin and currency in little sacks. The robber filled his suit case with the sacks and marched McCann to the middle of the garage, where a Hudson touring car, with engine running was waiting, with a second man at the wheel.

With McCann sitting beside the driver, and the armed robber alone in the back, the car was driven east in Delmar to Grand boulevard, south to Washington boulevard, east to Twelfth boulevard and south past Police Headquarters to the middle of the Twelfth street viaduct, where it was stopped.

"Now you get out, and keep your mouth shut," said the armed robber. McCann got out, and the car continued south. McCann walked north to Police Headquarters and told his story. He said he had looked in vain for a policeman as he was being driven downtown.

The loss is insured.

SIMPLICITY MARKS FUNERAL SERVICES OF VICTOR LAWSON

Great Host of Friends Gathered for Final Tribute to Publisher of Chicago News.

MINISTER PRAISES HIS LOVE OF TRUTH

Pallbearers From His Newspaper Associates—Many Notables in Journalism Present.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—In compliance with his wishes, simple funeral services were held here today for Victor F. Lawson, Mayor Dever, other city officials and the city Council attended in a body.

Great Company of Mourners. Despite his demands for simplicity, a great company of mourners, many nationally known in the field of journalism, in which as proprietor and editor of The Chicago Daily News and co-founder of The Associated Press, Lawson was a commanding figure for 50 years, was here for the funeral service at 11 o'clock this morning in the Little New England Congregational Church, preceding burial at Graceland cemetery.

In that church in the days of his youth he lent his voice to the singing from the steep choir loft. There he became acquainted with Miss Jessie Bradley, nearly half a century ago; there they were married, and there 34 years later, he knelt for comfort when Mrs. Lawson died. He was a trustee of the church, and for two years, and at his death, had been president of the board many years. Rarely did he miss a service.

Rev. O. S. Davis, officiating. The Rev. Dr. John R. Heyworth, pastor of the New England church, is in Canada on vacation. In his stead the Rev. Dr. Ozora Stearns Davis, president of the Chicago Theological Seminary, was chosen to act as the officiating clergyman.

"Victor F. Lawson was the lover and defender of truth," said the Rev. Dr. Davis, in his sermon. "This is probably the most illuminating single fact in his career. It sheds clear light on all his life, framed and did. In his Bible there are many heavy marks of approval set against all expressions of loyalty to truth, especially the single affirmation, 'But above all things, truth beareth away the victory.'"

"Out of this central love for truth and unswerving loyalty grew his devotion to his work, his comrades and his God. To hear Mr. Lawson speak in those sacred moments when he revealed his deep-seated self to understand with what intensity of conviction he gave himself to the development of the Daily News and the other great enterprises that absorbed him, is to feel the power of his human spirit, and to which no human prudence would affirm that he gave himself with the sacrifice which may have shortened his earthly years."

"A Christian Gentleman." "His was the simple religion of faith and loyalty to truth; of trust in Christ and service to man in his spirit; he was a Christian gentleman."

"The final accent of Victor F. Lawson's life is a thrilling vision of the music of triumph mingled with the chords of sadness, of humanity's still and music. He knew the sorrows as well as the joys, the defeats as well as the victories, and he made them into a song in the house of his pilgrimage because he believed in God in truth and in life. To live like this is to vindicate the highest worth of our common humanity and to claim one's birthright from God."

Reading of scriptural passages heavily underscored by Mr. Lawson in his Bible, the third Psalm, prayer and the singing of three hymns, "America, the Beautiful," "Lead Kindly Light," and "The Home-land," among others, by the publisher, completed the service.

There was no display, aside from the many wreaths and sprays of flowers. One sheaf, was from President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Pallbearers were drawn from the news and composing rooms and business office of the Daily News, without, however, disturbing the functions of the newspaper.

Some of Lawson's relatives from distant cities arrived only yesterday. Iver Lawson, the publisher's young brother, with Mrs. Lawson and Iver Lawson Jr., came from San Diego, Cal. Their daughter, Mrs. Clark M. Cavanne of Chicago, was at her uncle's bedside when he died. William Harrison Bradley, who married Lawson's sister, and whose own sister became Mrs. Victor F. Lawson, was unable, on account of illness, to come from his home in Ridgefield, Conn. His two daughters completed the circle of near relatives.

Of the thousands of messages of condolence and tribute which have streamed into the offices of the Daily News, one of the most touching was from Vice President Dawes. Melville E. Stone, now counselor and former general manager of the Associated Press, Lawson's partner in ownership of the Daily News for a dozen years, and his colleague in the organization and development of the Associated Press, was one of the first of the notables of the world of journalism to arrive for the funeral. Frank R. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, George Rogers of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, were others who hastened to Chicago.

By order of Kent Cooper, general manager, wires of the Associated Press were silenced for three minutes, beginning at 11 a. m. A radio memorial service for Lawson will be broadcast tomorrow night from station WLS. All radio stations within a radius of 50 miles of Chicago will remain silent during the program, which will be started at 8 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time. Walter L. Fisher will deliver the eulogy, and Miss Lawson likely will be broadcast.

"Bank with Security" National Bank. Open Every Day Until 5 P. M. Saturday Until 6:30 P. M. Eighth - Between Olive and Locust.

Eight Detectives Employed to Watch 700-Acre Estate of Max Phillips, New York Collar Maker.

FOUR PERSONS HELD ON HIS COMPLAINT

Charges That New York Banker Has Instigated Hounding to Weaken His Control Over Firm.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—As the result of what he regards as attempts by women to lure him and other plots, Max Phillips, wealthy collar manufacturer and polo player, is being closely guarded on his 700-acre estate near Katonah, N. Y. Eight armed detectives are on guard. Phillips carries a pistol. Watch dogs give warning if a stranger approaches.

Meanwhile, three women, presumably detectives and a male detective are out on bail after being arrested on Phillips' complaint. The purpose of the plots, he says, is to weaken his control of the Phillips-Jones Co. The hounding has persisted for months at the instigation of a New York banker, he says.

Public attention to Phillips' troubles first developed over the weekend when the arrests were revealed. The charges against the three women and the man vary from conspiracy to carrying concealed weapons. The women were arrested on his estate Friday night after detectives in his employ had listened to his conversation with them by means of a telephone device. He says the women tried to lure him aboard a yacht and take a trip to New England with the intention of having him arrested for violation of the Mann act and the other as a maid.

"Whole Thing a Melodrama." Frank H. Berg Jr., head of his own detective agency, who was arrested on his journey Aug. 9 and a statement that the whole thing is a publicity melodrama.

"I cannot see, however, that this publicity will assist his collar business," Berg said. "It certainly aided through newspaper accounts of his divorce case, in which he was quoted as saying that he would rather have a good polo pony than a wife. Isn't it absurd to think that women craftily enough to engage in such conduct would pick Mr. Phillips for a violation of the Mann act?"

Phillips was divorced seven years ago. Berg denied his agency was being paid by a banker. He said he was employed for a purpose by no means hostile to Phillips.

Polo on Private Field. Phillips played polo on his private field yesterday. Asked whether he was worried by the possibility of the presence of detectives, he said: "They wouldn't dare come in on these open spaces."

A heavily veiled woman, with a normally large feet and hands, eluded the guards sufficiently yesterday to approach Phillips.

"I am sure she was a man," Phillips said, after detectives had hustled her out of the house. "She had the largest hands and feet I ever saw. She was most unsightly and wore a scarlet veil. She kept roaming around. It was lucky detectives were with me. I might have been shot on the spot."

Mrs. Margaret Campbell, a New York spiritualist, was also dragged into the plots, Phillips said, in order to give the impression that he was a spiritualist and attended seances. He said a woman had lured him to Mrs. Campbell's home. While he was there, the police arrested her and summoned him to appear as a witness against her. He has declined to appear in court on two occasions.

Mrs. Thomas Francis' Father Dead. Word has been received in St. Louis of the death of the Rev. W. O. Waters, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Chicago, and father of Mrs. Thomas Francis of 6509 Natural Bridge road, which occurred from apoplexy while he was driving his automobile near Onset, Mass., Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Francis have been in the East. The funeral and interment will be held today at Sherburne, N. Y.

Archbishop Glennon in U. S. St. Louis Prelate Returns From Rome on the Franconia.

Dynamite Found, Miner Held. PITTSBURGH, Kan., Aug. 24.—Walter B. Greck, a miner, was arrested and taken to Girard this morning when bloodhounds led to Greck's home in Crowburg from the steam shovel mine of the Dunkirk Coal Co., about a mile west of Crowburg, where 125 sticks of dynamite, with fuse attached, were found yesterday.

tor Lawson, was unable, on account of illness, to come from his home in Ridgefield, Conn. His two daughters completed the circle of near relatives.

Of the thousands of messages of condolence and tribute which have streamed into the offices of the Daily News, one of the most touching was from Vice President Dawes. Melville E. Stone, now counselor and former general manager of the Associated Press, Lawson's partner in ownership of the Daily News for a dozen years, and his colleague in the organization and development of the Associated Press, was one of the first of the notables of the world of journalism to arrive for the funeral. Frank R. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, George Rogers of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, were others who hastened to Chicago.

By order of Kent Cooper, general manager, wires of the Associated Press were silenced for three minutes, beginning at 11 a. m. A radio memorial service for Lawson will be broadcast tomorrow night from station WLS. All radio stations within a radius of 50 miles of Chicago will remain silent during the program, which will be started at 8 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time. Walter L. Fisher will deliver the eulogy, and Miss Lawson likely will be broadcast.

PHILADELPHIA RECORD URGES NATIONAL BRYAN MEMORIAL

Newspaper Suggests That Ex-Secretary Daniels Head Committee and Says Dayton College Plan Is Inadequate.

Plans to Raise Funds to Assist Lenhard

Employer Would Aid Private Detective Who Told of Beating by County Officers.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—The Philadelphia Record today took the initiative in forming a committee to finance and erect a national memorial to William Jennings Bryan, five-time chairman of the committee Josephus Daniels, publisher of the Raleigh News and Observer and Secretary of the Navy in President Wilson's cabinet.

The Record says: "Mr. Bryan will be remembered, without any formal reminder of his achievements, for his influence upon the lives of his fellow citizens; for his long, ardent and unflinching defense of the right of the common people against the encroachments of privilege; for his vigorous promulgation of the social precept finally embodied in the eighteenth amendment; for his earnest advocacy of peace and for his militant stand at the climax of a life fraught with critical moments, in behalf of Christianity as he interpreted it against what he conceived to be the attacks of science."

His Beneficent Influence. "These things will be recalled, we say, long after his errors have been forgotten. The beneficent influence of the man, his earnestness of purpose, his miraculous away over some millions of his fellow citizens, are some facts that must be recognized even by those who do not agree with his political or social theories or entertain his religious convictions. He was a great American."

"The Record has observed reports from Tennessee of a movement to found there, as a memorial to Mr. Bryan, a college dedicated to opposing the theories of evolution."

"Such a movement, unless it is intended to be merely of local character, would be an egregious mistake. Unquestionably, the services of Mr. Bryan to his countrymen should be recognized by the erection of a national memorial—not to Bryan, the fundamentalist, to Bryan the prohibitionist, or to Bryan the democrat, but to Bryan the fearless crusader; to Bryan the statesman. It should not be a narrow, bigoted title from any group, clique or clan. It should be an all-embracing expression of the sentiment of the country to the financing and erecting of which all Americans big enough to recognize strength of character, exceptional ability and dogged persistence in obeying the dictates of conscience, whether they be political friends or foes, must contribute."

Daniels Willing to Accept Chairmanship of Committee. By the Associated Press. RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 24.—Josephus Daniels will accept the chairmanship of the committee proposed by the Philadelphia Record to erect a national memorial to William Jennings Bryan, "Mr. Bryan and Mrs. Bryan's close friends request it."

Daniels, a close friend of the late commoner, expressed gratification that The Record had taken the initiative and he felt sure that the press of the country as a whole, of all political creeds, will be glad to further any movement for a suitable memorial to Mr. Bryan."

Mrs. Bryan to Consider Newspaper's Proposal for Memorial. By the Associated Press. MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 24.—Mrs. William Jennings Bryan announced today she would give immediate consideration to the Philadelphia Record's proposal for a national memorial to her husband.

Her secretary said she had not learned of the project until today when a newspaper informed her. She indicated a definite announcement might be made during the day.

"Wildcat" Min. Strike Broken. WEDNESDAY, FRANKFURT, Ill., Aug. 24.—Officials of subdistrict 3, United Mine Workers of America, today reported that the "wildcat" strike at the Bell and Zeller mine No. 1, at Zeigler, has been broken. With all of the 1194 employees of the mine at work today, the authorized strike, which cost the life of Mike Sorovich and several bruised heads when insurgent miners attacked officers of the sub-district during a union meeting the night of Aug. 18, ended after Sheriff Dorris had mobilized officers from all sections of the county and thrown a cordon around the mine property.

Employer Would Aid Prisoner Who Told of Beating by County Officers.

Charles Ples, blacksmith at 240
Lemay Ferry road, employer of George Lenhardt, visited the Clayton Courthouse today and told of his plans to raise a fund to assist Lenhardt, who is held on a warrant charging him with the murder of his wife, mysteriously shot to death
Aug. 1 near their home at Oakville.

Three deputy constables and a private detective have been charged on charges of assault on Lenhardt, who has related that he was beaten while in the constables' custody Thursday night. He has been in the St. Louis city hospital because of his injuries. Six more warrants have been prepared for constables against other alleged thugs in the "third degree" treatment of Lenhardt.

Plans to Call Meeting.
Ples said Lenhardt had worked in his shop 15 years and that he was well known in the Lemay Ferry neighborhood.

"His friends do not believe he is guilty of the murder charge," Ples said, "and they wish to see that the men who abused him while he was in their custody are prosecuted. I am going to call a meeting, early this week, and ask for contributions to a fund, which I have asked the Lemay Ferry Bank to handle."

John A. Nolan of Clayton is Lenhardt's lawyer, and is interested in the prosecution of the men charged with assault.

Ples said it was not Lenhardt but he (Ples) who was kicked by a horse Thursday at the shop, shortly before Lenhardt was arrested there.
The two private detectives who brought about the arrest have denied that Lenhardt was beaten by them or in their presence, and they said Saturday the injury from which Lenhardt is suffering was a horse's kick.

CHAIN STORE FOR SITE OF COLUMBIA THEATER

McCrory Corporation Plans Erection of Building at Sixth and St. Charles.

Confirmation of the leasing of the ground occupied by the Columbia and Strand theaters, at the southwest corner of Sixth and St.
Charles, to a New York chain-store corporation, which plans to raze the theaters and erect a store and office building on the site, was made today by Charles J. Cella, who, with Frank R. Tate of Cella &
Tate, owns the property.

The consideration was not announced, but it is understood the principals have tentatively agreed on a rental of $110,000 a year for a period which will be determined in negotiations in the next few days. This is at the rate of $890 a front foot.

The site, about 125 feet square, is in the heart of the downtown retail section. The purchaser is the McCrory Chain Store Corporation of Rochester, N. Y., which operates a chain of 250-500-ft. stores.
The location is within the immediate vicinity of two 10-cent stores or national chain systems.

Plans for the new building are still in the projection stage, but it is known the company plans to put down caisson foundations to support a 16 or 20 story building.
At present a four-story structure is contemplated.

The Columbia Theater for years was the leading vaudeville house in St. Louis, and in recent years has been operated as a vaudeville and motion picture theater. The Strand Theater, a motion picture house, has been operated for 11 years.

these books and explaining which several bits of verse, chiefly psychological, which Osborn said today were "very fine, indeed."

INCAPABLE OF SUCH ROTTEN DEAL.
When Chapman heard for the first time that Anderson was being sought as the murderer of Hance and his wife, he promptly declared Anderson was "incapable of such a rotten deal," and readily offered several new theories.

Notwithstanding Hance's dying statement that it was Anderson and Charles "One Arm" Wolfe who did the shooting, Chapman, Groehl says, contends that it was incredible that Anderson had a part in it.

"Why, the man wouldn't be with in a thousand miles of that place," he exclaimed. "It would be the last place in the world he would go to."

Chapman told his lawyers he knew Wolfe, who is now held by the police, having met him when he and "Dutch" Anderson stayed at the Hance farm house at Eaton, Ind., 11 miles outside of Muncie.

"I've known Anderson a long time," Chapman is reported to have said, "and he's incapable of such a rotten deal. He wouldn't after the kind of treatment Mrs.
Hance accorded Anderson and myself when we stayed with them. I can't conceive of him shooting down a woman in cold blood."

His Feeling Toward Hance.
"Anderson and I left there with the best feeling toward them and I have never had occasion to change my feeling toward them," Hance testified in Hartford because he had to. He never would have gone back on us. Even when we were with him he had something pressing business. They had something on him or he never would have appeared as a witness against me."

Chapman agreed with his counsel that Hance's testimony did not hurt him and pointed out that he unhappily confirmed much of the testimony.

"I'm certain Anderson could not have had anything to do with this on my account," the condemned man said, according to the lawyers,
"because he would realize that he would only react against me, and he even knew I have odds enough against me now."

Hance Feared by Neighbors.

Chapman explained that many of Hance's neighbors feared him because of what he knew about their activities and might. He requested reason to want to get him out of there. Chapman inferred from the fact that Mrs. Hance was bareheaded when murdered that she and Hance could not have come from a city visit but must have been returning from a tomato plantation they had some distance from their farmhouse.

As to Chapman's taste for books,
Col. Osborn explained that as president of the Prison Board he has visited Chapman's cells several times to ascertain if he had any complaints or special requests to make and learned Chapman had been getting many of the best books from the prison library.
Osborn loaned him several books, and later Chapman found an outlet for his feelings by writing several letters to Osborn about the books and telling wherein he found the greatest pleasure.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 24.—
St. James Protestant Episcopal Church here, in which six presidents of the United States have worshipped, was saved from the auctioneer's hammer yesterday by Ernest Levy of Long Branch and New York, a Jew, who paid in full the city's levy of $600 for a paving tax.

The chapel is hallowed by the memory of Presidents Grant, Garfield, Hayes, McKinley and Wilson, so that it has "name of 'Church of the Presidents.' At Franklin Cottage, almost within the shadow of the edifice, President here, Hart-Sept. 19, 1881, died after having been shot by Guitau.

The congregation of the "Church of the Presidents" has shrunk within recent years and the edifice had been posted for sale when Levy paid the tax.

Shooting Anybody.

By the Associated Press.
OLA, Kan., Aug. 24.—Raymond Winks, 14 years old, is dead, and Everett Darnold, 17, is seriously wounded, as the result of a shooting three miles east of Humboldt, Kan., last night in connection with which a melon grower, is held in custody.

A telephone message that neighbors were being disturbed by a party at the rooming house of Mrs.
Edith Tobin, 4052 1/2 Olive street, promptly took there at 8:30 o'clock last night. They seized 34 quarts of beer and arrested Mrs. Tobin.

A night of hilarity for W. W.
Meek, 43 years old, of 1704 South Twelfth street, culminated at 10:30 o'clock, when he engaged in an argument with his taxicab chauffeur, Miles Welty, over the $10.40 fare,
at Soudard and Menard streets.
Meek fell through a plate-glass window of an automobile accessory store at the corner, and when police extricated him from the debris, a bottle each of whiskey and beer were found on him. He was arrested.

A total of 144 arrests were made yesterday and last night, this number including 31 robbery suspects, 16 taken at beer parties, 46 at negro resorts and two for carrying concealed weapons.

WOMAN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT IN JULY, 1922, DIES

Death of East St. Louisan Attributed to Grief Over Death of Husband and Sons in Mishap.

Mrs. Mary Forest, 44 years old, died at St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis today of injuries suffered in an automobile accident July 12, 1922, in which her husband and two sons were killed.

Physicians said grief contributed to her death. A daughter, Clara, 18 years old, survives.

JOKE FATAL TO WOMAN

Illinoisan Killed Under Truck After Being Told Machine Was Afire.
By the Associated Press.
DUQUOIN, Ill., Aug. 24.—Mrs.
Roy Francis, 28 years old, of Duquoin, was killed near here yesterday when she fell under an automobile truck in which she and her two sons were returning from Eldorado, Ill. Someone jokingly remarked that the truck was afire, and Mrs. Francis slipped as she attempted to leap out.

Fined $1200 for Bringing Liquor In
by the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Eugene
LeBoese, a diplomat, was fined $1200 to customs officials for bringing undeclared liquors into this country, but he did not get his liquors, nor his cigarettes and perfumes, which he also brought. He paid $60 as duty on 400 cigars, which were returned to him. When he arrived last week, LeBoese said he was bringing the liquor for rich friends in Manchester and claimed immunity from custom inspection on the ground that he was a diplomat.

BUS DIAPHRAGM Robbed of $20.

John Brinkley, dispatcher for the People's Motorbus Co., was held up by an armed man at Grand boulevard and Neosho street at 1:15 a. m. yesterday and robbed of $20 of his own money, and a gun containing transfers and a coin register valued at $75.

WOMAN'S PURSE STOLEN
WHILE SHE KNEELS AT MASS

Owner Quietly Leaves Church in Pursuit—Boys Catch Snatcher.
By the Associated Press.
Kneeling at 11 o'clock mass in the Church of St. Francis de Sales yesterday, Mrs. Hildegard Clever, of 2115 Oregon avenue, lost her purse containing a small amount of change, on the pew.

An elderly woman, who sat in the next pew to the rear, leaned over, picked up the purse and ran out. Mrs. Clever rose to her feet and followed her, without disturbing any of the comparatively few worshippers at the late mass.

Outside, a number of small boys took up the chase, overtaking the purse-snatcher two blocks north, at Ohio avenue and Sibley street, and holding her while others sought a policeman. Mrs. Clever placed charges against her, but today learning that the woman was mentally afflicted, said she would not prosecute.

The police are making it hot for "soft drink parlors" which dispense whisky and beer. They have discovered many unique hiding places for liquor, greatly to the chagrin of inventive bartenders, who seemingly have played their last trick.
The police report arresting 29 sal-oonkeepers yesterday and 41 Saturday, without coming across any thing new in the way of concealment of liquor.

Evidence seized in liquor raids almost filled to capacity the basement at Police Headquarters.

VERDICT OF ACCIDENT IN DEATH OF BOY FROM BURNS

Glenn Willett, 8, Was Fatally Injured When Gasoline in Auto Shop Became Ignited.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the death of Glenn Willett, 8 years old, of 219
Texas avenue, who died from burns
Saturday night. According to testimony at the inquest, the child was playing in the rear of his father's automobile repair shop at 1648 Ohio avenue, Saturday, while a mechanic, Ray Dreyfuss, was inside cleaning an automobile with gasoline.

The gasoline caught fire, from some unexplained cause, and the father, Edward Willett, picked up a bucket and threw it through the door. The flaming liquid struck the child, who ran past the door just as the burning gasoline was thrown out.

The father was severely burned on the hands and arms in beating out the flames on his son's clothing.

Presents His Old Home Town With High School

Marion C. Early, St. Louis Lawyer, Buys Former College Buildings and Donates Them to Morrisville, Polk County, Mo.

Morrisville, Polk County, Mo., will open next Monday its new district high school, the gift of Marion C. Early, St. Louis lawyer and former president of the St. Louis Bar Association. Early, a former resident of Morrisville, has purchased and donated to his old home town the four buildings which were used until last June by Scarritt-Morrisville College, an institution of the Methodist Church, South.

The institution was a junior college, and Early was a trustee and an active supporter for several years past. When the Methodist conference decided to close it, in order to concentrate support on larger colleges, it seemed that the town would be left without adequate high school facilities.

Early met this situation by acquiring the property and dedicating it to the community. The only condition he imposed was that the educational standards required for admission of graduates to the State University shall be maintained.

Early declined to state the amount involved in his gift when questioned today. He is a native of Polk County, but never attended Morrisville College, though it was in existence during his boyhood.
He was educated in Southwest Baptist College, at Bolivar, and in Drury College, Springfield. He is now a trustee of Drury College.

About 75 students of high school grade living in and around Morrisville are expected to attend the school, which will have a faculty of college graduates.

500-CATHOLIC TEACHERS
REGISTERED FOR INSTITUTE

Meeting to Be Under Auspices of Medical School and Tuberculosis Society.

More than 500 teachers of St.
Louis Catholic elementary and preparatory schools have registered for the health institute to be held at the Cathedral Auditorium on Wednesday and Thursday.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the St. Louis University Medical School and the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society. Several hundred parochial school teachers from outside the city are expected to attend, as well as teachers from the public schools. This will be the first meeting of the kind ever held here.

Among the subjects announced are "Biology in Relation to Health," by Father A. M. Schwatze, S. J., regent of the St. Louis University Medical School; "Respiratory Diseases," by Dr. Ralph Kinsella of the same institution;
"Tonsils and Adenoids," by Dr.
Hanau W. Loeb, dean of the St.
Louis University Medical School, and "Mother's Clubs and Milk Stations," by Mrs. William T. Donovan, president of the Council of Catholic Women of the St. Louis archdiocese.

FREE For Coupon 7-Day Supply

Now Whiten Darkish Skin
4 to 5 Shades

—by Removing Cold Cream
This Amazing NEW Way.

Please Accept a 7-Day Packet To Try.

HERE is a new way of removing cold cream that will work quick and important changes in your skin.

A way that will end oily nose and skin conditions amazingly.

That will hold your "make-up" fresh for hours longer than before.

That will largely end skin imperfections and eruptions.

That will lighten dark looking skins almost unbelievably.

A scientific way now widely urged by skin experts and beauty specialists throughout the United States.

The coupon brings a full 7-day supply without charge. Please use it. What it brings will amaze you.

A New Way

This new way is called KLEENEX. A new kind of material—different from any other you have ever seen.

It comes in exquisite, aseptic sheets of handkerchief size. You use it, then discard it.
It is the first method ever known that removes ALL cleansing cream, ALL dirt, grime and germ-laden matter from the pores.

No More Soiled Towels

Soft as down and white as snow, it is 27 times as absorbent as an ordinary cloth towel.

It ends the "soiled towel" method that is dangerous to skin beauty.

It avoids the harshness of paper makeshift ways. It is made by one of the world's leading makers of absorbents.

No Oily Skins

Because it removes all dangerous matter and grease from the pores, it combats greasy skin and nose conditions. A greasy skin often means cold cream left in the skin which the pores constantly exude.

A blemished skin largely indicates a germ condition of the pores. You must clean them out. Old ways won't do it.

In two or three days this method will prove itself.

You will be surprised at the difference in your skin. In its fairness, freedom from "shine," in the way your "make-up" holds its charm and freshness.

Try It Free

Just detach the coupon. Use it by all means.
You'll be delighted with what it brings.

31 Years' EXPERIENCE

BROTHERS BADLY HURT IN FALL OF 18 FEET

Harry Lucas, 5, and James, 3, Plunge Through Window
When Scuffling in Home.

Scuffling in play in the kitchen of their second-story home at 1818A Chouteau avenue, Harry Lucas, 5 years old, and his brother, James, 3, fell through a window to a brick sidewalk 18 feet below yesterday noon, and were injured seriously.

The boys leaped against a screen, which gave way, letting them fall through the window. Their mother was in the kitchen at the time, preparing dinner. They were taken to City Hospital. Harry suffered a fracture of the skull and right arm and James suffered a fracture of the skull, internal injuries and hemorrhage of the brain.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lucas are the parents of the boys.

GIRL SLAYER OF MOTHER TO BE SENTENCED WEDNESDAY
Manslaughter Verdict Against Dorothy Ellingson Carries One to 10-Year Prison Term.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—Convicted of manslaughter, Dorothy Ellingson, 17-year-old confessed slayer of her mother, has been returned to jail to await sentence by Judge Harold Louder, next Wednesday. A manslaughter verdict carries a penalty of one to 10 years in the penitentiary. Dorothy will be eligible to parole after the first year.

Since her first trial Dorothy has become a convert to the Roman Catholic faith. The Rev. A. R. Drathman sat near her when the verdict was returned Saturday, to console her.

The girl shot and killed her mother on Jan. 12 last because her mother refused to consent to the girl's going to a "jazz" party. The girl died after the shooting and a few hours later attended the party. She was arrested the next day in a cheap lodging house here. Dorothy showed no remorse and readily confessed the shooting.

At the first trial the jury found the girl insane and she was committed to the State Hospital at Napa, where she remained a month under observation. After this detention alienists pronounced her sane.

CHIEF GERK PURSUES AUTO THAT ZIG-ZAGS, ARRESTS TWO Empty Whisky Flask Found in Car in Which Police Characters Were Riding.

As Chief of Police Gerk's official automobile was being driven west in Locust street at Eighteenth street, at 11 a. m. today, another car passed by at high speed and began to zig-zag. Gerk ordered his chauffeur to overtake it, which he did at Twenty-third street, where the Chief drew his revolver and arrested the two men in the other car.

An empty whisky flask was found in the car and the men had been drinking. They described themselves as Ford L. Lamb, 25 years old, and Robert Mount, 30, both police characters. Each has been arrested several times and has served a Workhouse term, and Lamb now is out on bond on a burglary charge.

STUNT FLYER FALLS TO DEATH
Youth, 20, Killed During Exhibition Before Kansas Crowd.

By the Associated Press.
COLDWATER, Kan., Aug. 24.—Joe Lachattelle, 20 years old, of Grand Rapids, Mich., fell 200 feet to his death here yesterday, while doing "airplane stunts."

Lachattelle had been in the air only a few minutes, wing-walking and doing trapeze acts, when spectators observed that his strength was about exhausted. He was unable to pull himself back to the trapeze and fell to the ground. Nearly every bone in his body was broken.

LEWIS AGREES TO CONFERENCE
Mine Workers' Head Accepts Invitation of Citizens' Committee.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, today accepted an invitation to a conference between anthracite mine workers and citizens of the hard coal regions at Hazleton, Pa., at noon tomorrow. The invitation was extended by John H. Tull, chairman of a citizens' committee of Wilkesbarre.

Lewis insisted that the meeting be conducted as an open forum with press and public privileged to attend.

CAFE OWNER WIELDS CLEAVER ON ROBBER

One of Holdup Men in Hospital in Serious Condition With Lacerated Wrists.

George Chofas, 32, who owns a restaurant at 150 Franklin avenue, has used a meat cleaver 20 years in cutting steaks, but last night was the first time he learned that it also was practical for putting robbers to flight.

At 11 o'clock last night two robbers entered the restaurant and while one took $4.65 from the cash register the other attacked Chofas, who was in the kitchen in the rear, with the result that Joseph Cleary, 29, a laborer, 6001 Maple avenue, is in the city hospital in a serious condition, both wrists lacerated by Chofas' meat cleaver. In the melee Chofas suffered a slight cut on the left wrist and a blackened eye. Cleary's companion, who fled with the money, has not been apprehended.

"I was in the kitchen cleaning the grease off my stove with my meat cleaver," Chofas said today. "I noticed two men come in the restaurant, but paid no attention to them, thinking they were customers. All of a sudden someone hit me, not very hard, on the shoulder. I thought it was one of my customers playing a joke. I turned around and the man hit me hard on the head with a billy. I saw it was no joke. He tried to hit me with his right hand and I hit it with the cleaver. Then he tried to use his left hand and I hit it with the cleaver. The other man, who had taken the money, started towards me, but he stopped, looked at the cleaver, and then both ran out."

Cleary was apprehended by the police at Sixteenth and O'Fallon streets, after they had followed a trail of blood leading from the restaurant. He refused to identify his companion.

FRENCH FLYERS TO DISTILL SEA WATER IF CAST ADRIFT

15 Days Food Supply to Be Carried and Plans to Float Indefinitely Are Made.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Publisher, Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo. and Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—When Francis Coli and Paul Tarocon hop off for their flight from Paris to New York, they will be prepared to float indefinitely in case their plane is forced down at sea. They will carry dried food sufficient for 15 days and an apparatus for distilling sea water will obviate the traditional terror of castaways.

Although the two famed war veterans refuse to set a date for their departure, they are expected to take off during the first 10 days of September. Masses of meteorological data concerning especially the seasonal variations of the winds, have convinced them that is the best time. They expect to have a favorable east wind at the start, instead of the prevailing westerlies.

The giant 420 horse-power Rotz biplane they will use is being tested almost every day to find out the maximum weight it can carry and still reach New York in 30 hours. With 3000 litres of gasoline, it is expected to weigh about four tons at the start. The landing gear will be dropped as soon as it reaches the sea.

In case the flyers are forced down they will throw out a canvas sea anchor to steady it, pump the fuel from the tanks and perhaps even throw out the motor. The plane then will float indefinitely in ordinary weather. They will carry rockets for distress signals.

They plan to start during the late afternoon that the stars may aid navigation during the most difficult part of the flight. Traveling about 125 miles an hour, they expect to reach New York in 30 hours.

HOPE'S RAIN PRAYER ANSWERED BY DOWNPOUR IN ARIZONA

Deluge Breaks Extended Drought That Threatened Crops and Livestock Ranges.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 24.—The rattlesnakes of the Hopi Indians evidently carried the prayer of the red men for rain to the spider woman of the underworld whom the Indians believe has control over the rain clouds, for heavy rains fell yesterday, breaking the long extended drought which threatened the crops and livestock ranges of Central and Southern Arizona.

The Hopi Indians last Wednesday staged their annual colorful and weird snake dance near Winslow, offering up their prayers for rain by liberating hundreds of rattlesnakes which were supposed to carry the rain prayers to the snake mother and thence to the spider woman of the underworld. "The dance is one of the most fantastic of American Indian dances—the Indians wrap and wind the snakes about their bodies and even take the reptiles in their mouths during the dance with utter abandon as to danger of the poisonous fangs. Often the Indians are bitten, but they have a secret antidote which they imbibe in huge quantities, almost a bucketful by each dancer, after the dance, and it is reported none has ever died from the effects of the snakes' bites. Even though the Hopi Indians' rain prayer has been answered and relief has been brought to the farmer and stockman, some damage was caused by yesterday's downpour, highways being damaged and several streams running high.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" is Far Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water after meals for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach cool and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drug store.

CONSTANT PAIN FROM PIMPLES

Face, Neck and Shoulders Covered. Lasted Four Years. Cuticura Heals.

"My face, neck and shoulders were covered with pimples that were hard, large and red. At first I took no notice of them but the trouble kept getting worse. The pimples itched and burned and the more I scratched the worse they got. They caused constant pain and I lost my rest at night. The trouble lasted for four years. "I was advised to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some, and after using six cakes of Soap and three boxes of Ointment I was healed." SEVEN HANGED FOR ASSASSINATION OF SUDAN GOVERNOR

Crowd Outside Cairo Prison
Watches Successive Raising of Black Flag to Indicate Executions.

By the Associated Press.
CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 24.—Seven men convicted of the murder of Sir Lee Stack, Governor-General of the Sudan, were hanged yesterday, the execution being spaced at 45-minute intervals.

The death sentence imposed upon Abdel Fattah Enayat, one of the conspirators, was commuted to life imprisonment, in view of his services to the Crown in turning State's evidence.

A great crowd gathered outside the prison walls and watched silently as the successive raising of a black flag indicated the progress of the executions.

The condemned were permitted to say farewell to their families last night. All of them went to the gallows with apparent composure except Dr. Bakf Mansour. He struggled to get away from the guard as he was led to the trap.

The bodies were given to the relatives for burial. Nine men were convicted of complicity in the assassination of Gen. Stack.

BRITISH LORDS DEFEAT LIVING FORM WAGE BILL
Plea of Marquess of Lincolnshire, Owner of 23,000 Acres, Falls on Deaf Ears.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 19.—The Marquess of Lincolnshire, owner of 23,000 acres, surprised his political friends as well as foes by pleading recently in the House of Lords for his bill designed to give a "living wage" to farm hands. Many of the members, landowners themselves, twitted the 80-year-old Marquess for his sympathies with the working man and his cause, but his reply was: "Tut, tut, but one myself two or three generations ago."

The Marquess of Lincolnshire said he knew what was a living wage on the land in England, and he made it plain that he practiced what he preached for his farm hands for the last 60 years.

Only six hours have been given to the discussion of agriculture in the House of Lords since 1905, said the Marquess. "I consider it more than a national scandal: it is a national crime, and a national disgrace."

The bill was defeated by a substantial majority.

PARALLEL RAILWAY LINES TO CROSS RIO GRANDE VALLEY
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—When the 25 business men who ride the first train over the new Rio Grande City Railway Co.'s line on the opening day, Aug. 23, arrive at San Antonio, they will find that the line will be within 20 miles of the end of another road being constructed by the San Antonio & Rio Grande Valley Railroad.

Construction crews on the San Antonio road have been working for some time, near Mission, Tex., about 32 miles from San Antonio. It is estimated by George Winsor, general manager of the road, that the remaining 15 miles will have been completed before the middle of September.

THE RISE AND FALL OF JESSE JAMES

By ROBERTUS LOVE

Jim Younger Kills Himself in a Fit of Despondency Over a Love Affair—Cole Younger Returns Missouri and Settles Down—Peaceable Citizen—Frank James Lives Down His Past—Turning Politician He Becomes Known as Missouri's Most Famous Democrat—He Writes to Theodore Roosevelt.

CHAPTER XXXVII.
ONLY one of the three Younger brothers who went to Minnesota in 1876, instead of going to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia and having a good time, ever got back home alive.

That was Thomas Coleman; and this outlaw historian was selected by certain invisible powers as the man to escort Cole into his native State after an enforced absence of nearly 27 years. Now it may be told that the late Capt. Bronaugh was chief of those invisible. Possibly the Captain was grateful to me for having taught him nothing serious about playing poker.

A legitimate journalistic plot was involved in the affair. The idea was to have the late of the Youngers re-enter Missouri by way of St. Louis and proceed across State to his old home at Lee's Summit, in Jackson County. I was on the staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, being dubbed "the outlaw editor" by certain facetious fellows because I had covered many assignments having to do with bold, bad men. Through correspondence with Capt. Bronaugh and Cole Younger it was arranged that I should meet the latter in Chicago and accompany him to St. Louis, without preliminary publicity, thus giving my paper first chance at the interesting story of his homecoming.

Best-laid plans frequently fail. "The war" more than 40 years after he left Lee's Summit to join Quantrill's band. He did not announce his coming. Miss Nettie Hall, his wife, told me about it not a long time ago at her home in Lee's Summit.

"My sister Nettie's husband, Mr. Donahue, was running the hotel here. He had never seen Uncle Cole. The night of Feb. 15, 1903, about midnight, a big man stepped off a train from Kansas City, carrying a grip. He walked to the hotel, near the station. He stood by the stove in the hotel office, smoking his pipe.

"Several persons were there, but nobody paid any special attention to the big man. Another man, a drummer, had got off the same train and gone to the hotel. After a time the big man remarked to Mr. Donahue that he reckoned he'd better get a room and turn in. The drummer was a man of a different sort. So was the landlord. Those two exchanged glances. Finally Mr. Donahue asked the big stranger if he wasn't Cole Younger and Uncle Cole admitted it.

He had a good laugh at the drummer's remark. He sat near Uncle Cole. He had heard somehow that Uncle Cole and his brother had been in the city and was bound for Lee's Summit that night. He had seen a large man on the train for my uncle. He remarked to Uncle Cole, 'Isn't that man over there Cole Younger?' 'I don't think so,' Uncle Cole replied, trying hard to keep a straight face. Well, after they found out who it was, Nettie came downstairs and there was a jocular reunion.

The returned native lived at the hotel for some months but found the life rather too public for his taste. He was a retiring disposition. He told Miss Hall he was going to her house to live, and he did so. After that he had no more to do with the Youngers. He was a quiet, unassuming man, a man of the Southwest, he bought a two-story house which he presented to Miss Hall, his favorite niece. In that residence he dwelt until his death.

There was a romance in Cole Younger's life, but it happened—started, much earlier than Jim's. The first visit he made away from Lee's Summit after his return was to the home of a prospector and distinguished citizen whose wife, as a beautiful young girl, had been Bud Younger's sweetheart before the war. Younger was 18 then, he was 59 now, but he had not forgotten. Nor had the girl. Through all the years of his outlawry and of his imprisonment he had cherished the memory of her; and she had borne him in recollection as a handsome and desirable youth whom the misfortunes of war had overwhelmed. I could tell you—but I won't—the tale of Cole Younger's lifelong love affair in considerable detail. It would be a love story thoroughly sweet and noble. Half a century from now, perhaps, somebody may be writing without violating confidences of the living or of the dead. I violate no confidence in giving this tip to posterity.

A Bandit's Romance
Frank James, as we know, was more fortunate in his affair of the heart than was his long-time friend, Cole Younger. He married the girl, asking nobody's consent but his own. Despite all untoward circumstances it turned out to be a happy marriage. I fancy that there was no happier woman living than Mrs. Frank James when her husband stepped forth from the Independence jail a free man and a 'wild-bird citizen of Missouri and of the United States. To be a bandit means to be under the ban of society. In the case of Frank James the ban was lifted when the state

THE RISE AND FALL OF JESSE JAMES

By ROBERTUS LOVE

President listened like a schoolboy hearing some thrilling tale in which the could not give full credence on the instant, but the decision of "Well! Well!" cried Roosevelt. "What a remarkable life-story! A remarkable man, a most remarkable character!"

"He told me the other day, Mr. President," said the editor, "that you both men of the same type—you both men of what you say and you say what you mean, he said."

The President's interest deepened. "I want to meet this man," he said with emphasis. "John, I want you to come to the White House and take luncheon with me—you know that—standing invitation but when you do come, I wish you might bring Mr. James along with you. This, you understand, is not in the nature of a command from the President—merely a request."

Frank Writes the President.
Mr. John explained that Mr. James happened to be in Montana—Frank still was a great traveler—but he would communicate with him, which he did. James, having returned to St. Louis, wrote a letter to President Roosevelt thanking him for the invitation to the White House. He took the missive to the Post-Dispatch office with the request that Mr. John edit it. The latter read it and said it required no editing, it was an excellent piece of writing. James had assured the President "you are a man after my own heart, a man of my type."

He mailed the letter, and no doubt it is in the Roosevelt family archives. But James, who was rather timid about the idea anyhow, never visited the President. Sitting in the Laclede Hotel lobby one day, Frank James remarked to James C. Epper, a local Republican politician, that he was going to quit Missouri and never return unless he was brought back on a stretcher. He had not forgotten his native State for failing to give the James family "vindication," in the matter of the job at Jefferson City. Shortly afterward he removed to Oklahoma, where he engaged in farming for a few years. His health failed. He had inherited the old homestead from his mother, recently deceased. Love of his early home still was strong within him. Like his wounded brother, Jesse, the young guerrilla, he wished to die at home. He was brought back on a stretcher, but again like Jesse, he improved in health on the old farm near Kearney.

"If Frank James says he'll do a thing, he'll do it," his mother once remarked, in his hearing. Incidentally, I have discovered that. He was a man of his word. He kept faith with those who kept faith with him. He was thoroughly dependable. He deliberated his decisions and stood by them. Frank James was absolutely honest. I used to say, and I meant it, that if I had a million dollars I should as lief trust it to him as to any man I know—but I never had the million for the test. He despised crooks and liars and hypocrites and cheap-shake crooks.

When Frank James and Cole Younger, some time after the latter returned home, went out together in a Wild West show, James discovered that a group of deadbeats was following the outfit. The manager winked at the confidence men who were cheating the people in every town where the performance took place. James began writing letters to Mayors and police officials in towns ahead of the itinerary, warning them against the crooks. For this reason those gentry took a strong dislike to James. At a town in Northern Missouri several of them cornered him in a store and his face toward them, a practice acquired in earlier years, and edged out to the sidewalk. He was armed—he carried a concealed weapon by permit—for possible use in self-defense. He feared he might have to make use of his weapon on this occasion, and he was strongly averse to such action.

Cole Younger happened to be riding along the street—on a Missouri route, according to my informant. He saw the gang of crooks threatening his old comrade, who stood with back to wall. Younger took in the situation at once.

"Hold them off, Frank, till I come," he shouted, urging his mount forward. The "cool men," arrayed cowardly, decided forthwith not to try to beat up old Frank James. His man and looked more formidable than did the lean, lank Frank. They drew off, hurling back foul oaths.

If those two oldtimers had been drawn into a mixup with the crooks, what a story would have resulted! And many thoughtless persons would have leaped at the conclusion that James and Younger had gone back to their old tricks. James and Younger, being wise, knew this. They had their 20-rod post-outlaw reputations to preserve and posterity and everybody who knew him. The

HINDENBURG 'DETERMINED TO DO UTMOST FOR PEACE'

In Message to American Business Men He Says He Is Gratiated at Interest They Take in Germany.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—An expression of "hope for the stabilization of economic and social conditions" in Germany is sounded by Gen. von Hindenburg, President of the German republic, in a message given to American business men and made public by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The old commander has broken with the monarchists and the reactionaries and appears to be an unwavering guide, the statement says. He gives his word to do his utmost toward the preservation of peace.

"I am much gratified," says President von Hindenburg in his message, "to hear that American business men are taking such a deep interest in the conditions of present-day Germany. The social confusion resulting from the outcome of the war and post-war conditions which have prevailed for several years now seems definitely to have given way to a readjustment of social life along stable lines. I am firmly convinced that this stabilization of economic and social conditions will continue to improve in Germany as peaceful conditions are restored among the peoples of Europe. I, for my part, am determined to do my utmost toward such restoration and preservation of peace."

The Chamber of Commerce magazine's next issue contains an article by the editor, Merle Thorpe, embodying the Hindenburg message and emphasizing that American business may rely upon a continuing of improvement in conditions in Germany under his guidance.

Thorpe relates that he went to Germany to "find out if Hindenburg's election was a sign that the German people had military and monarchial ambitions, or if it was an earnest of a stable republican government." He concludes that the latter view is the true one.

FRENCH REPLY TO GERMANY'S SECURITY PROPOSAL DELIVERED
Ambassador de Margerie Hands Answer to Berlin Government; To Be Published Friday.
By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Aug. 24.—French Ambassador de Margerie handed to the German Government the French answer to the proposed security pact at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Aug. 24.—The French note to the latest German rejoinder on the security question, it was said this morning, will be made public Friday morning.

The note, delivery of which has several times been delayed, is virtually the same as elaborated at the meeting between Foreign Minister Briand and the British Foreign Secretary, Austen Chamberlain. French official circles say there are no grounds for reports published in Germany of "important changes made at the eleventh hour." Publication of the note on Friday is regarded here as giving Germany time either to ask that the matter be referred to the League Council, opening at Geneva Monday, or as is expected, to request a special conference. It is understood the French Government is prepared to agree to either request.

F. J. PRIMAVESI APPOINTED
WARDEN OF THE CITY JAIL
He Had Ranked First in Recent Examination Conducted by the Efficiency Board.
Frank J. Primavesi today was appointed Warden of the city jail by Director of Public Welfare Salisbury. Primavesi, Warden of the city workhouse, in the Kreisemann administration, ranked first in recent examinations of the Efficiency Board to select eligibles for appointment to the two posts.

John M. McCully, former Warden of the city jail, who ranked second in the two examinations, thus leads the eligible list for appointment to the workhouse position, now held under temporary appointment by Elisha C. Freese, father-in-law of Robert Krato, who was Mayor Miller's campaign manager.

However, Director Salisbury announced he had in mind the reappointment of Freese for another 60 days to permit more extensive study by the board, to provide the full eligibility list of three.

Primavesi succeeds Richard Hutton as jailer. Announcement was made today that Hutton had been restored to the eligible list.

PLUMBERS OBJECT TO TIME REQUIRED TO GET PERMITS Necessary to Visit Several City Offices, Delegation Points Out.
A delegation of the Master Plumbers' Association met Director of Public Safety Brod and Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks at City Hall today to protest against the time required for issuance of plumbing permits. The master plumbers pointed out that it took two hours and a half, and sometimes even longer, to get permits. Director Brod said he thought representatives to visit several city offices in the routine for many permits.

It was suggested by the delegation that the city give one official the task of handling all permit applications, to facilitate the issuance. Director Brod said he thought the $100 bond posted by each master plumber as evidence of responsibility should be increased to possibly $250. Delegation spokesmen replied that they had no objection if they could get better permit service.

SEEKS PERMIT FOR RAIL LINE Corporation Would Connect West Palm Beach and Florida City.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The Sea Board All-Florida Railroad Corporation applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to construct a 180-mile line from West Palm Beach through Miami to Florida City, and 94 miles of road from Fort Oden to LaBelle, Estero and Punta Rassa through Fort Meyers.

To finance the project, the company will issue stock and joint bonds of the Seaboard Airline, the Florida Western and Northern Railroad, and the East and West Coast Railway aggregating $25,000,000, to be sold to a syndicate headed by Dillon, Read & Co. at 94.5 per cent of par.

FRENCH ARTIST LEADS REVOLT IN PAINTING
"Intensitism" Coined to Express Style Contrary to Impressionism.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, Aug. 24.—"Intensitism" is going to invade America in a few weeks. What is "intensitism"? The writer feels partly qualified to answer the question, because he himself invented the word about 19 minutes ago. Also because he has just had an interview with Fernand Leger, who invented the thing, but did not invent the name. Leger does not yet know that the thing he has invented is called "intensitism." But it is.

The reason why the writer invented the word is that he had to write about the thing, and he finds it hard to write about things that have no name. So that is why.

One knows what impressionism is. At least one knows that it is a school of painting. Well, intensitism is another school of painting.

Impressionism began some half a century ago people laughed. They laughed for several decades. "What! Do you call that a tree? Call that a house? Call that a nude female figure?" His, ha! Gradually people got used to impressionism. Today they even buy cheap reproductions of Renoir and hang them up in the hall just as they would Washington Crossing the Delaware or Mona Lisa or Van Gogh. Impressionism has become a classic.

When a style of painting becomes accepted, there are revolts. There have been revolts against impressionism, post-impressionism, cubism, verism, etc.

Employ Unbinding Tones.
Fernand Leger heads a new revolt, which is called intensitism. "It is the contrary of impressionism," he explained. "Take my colors, for example. Almost always pure tones, and so far as possible avoiding the placing of complementary colors side by side. Thus they stand out sharp and do not blend."

"The impressionists use pure colors, but they place violet beside yellow, green beside red. The colors blend as you view them, and you get various grays. No grays in my pictures. Everything sharp, everything intense. That is the distinctive quality—intensity."

Canvases Coming to U. S.
Leger is sending a dozen canvases and numerous drawings and sketches to be exhibited in New York in the early autumn. Possibly they will also travel to other cities. The artist's name is not altogether unknown in America. The Little Review has published reproductions of his work. He has done stage decorations in New York also, although his latest ballet success, the Negro ballet, was not produced because after the settings arrived in New York it was discovered that the stage was not large enough to accommodate them.

Parking Space in New Courthouse.

It occurs to me that there should be incorporated in the plans for the new courthouse an arrangement for parking space in the basement. The number of automobiles in use has become so great that it is almost impossible to find parking space east of Eighteenth street after 10 o'clock, the hour when courts convene.

Many people attend the courts as jurors or witnesses at considerable inconvenience to themselves, but as a public duty. These persons are anxious to get to their places of business as soon as possible after their public work has been completed. It seems only fair that some provision should be made to provide a reasonable parking place for these persons. At the present time the site of the proposed courthouse from 300 to 400 cars parked there each day.

Mr. Kinsey, president of the Board of Public Works, told me recently that the plans for the new courthouse are well under way, so that if any action is to be taken it should be done in the very near future.

"Under the Lid."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Christian and Citizen both protest too much against the splendid cartoon on the failure of prohibition in the Post-Dispatch, "Under the Lid."

Where was the Anti-Liberty League was wrecking the Constitution with the folly of the ages—prohibition? Too many so-called Christians are solving the devil in the liver of the Lord.

And so-called good citizens are serving the enemies of liberty in the guise of the Pharisees.

Oh, Christianity and Liberty, thou art the same, but many crimes are committed in thy name!

Breese, Ill. J. J. MORONEY.

Unfair Traffic Customs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I SEE by the edition of a few days ago that City Councilor Sentz says that the citizen "has no vested right to use the streets as a place to store his automobile." Anyone whose duties take him to Westminster place between Taylor and Spring, at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, will see hundreds of "all-night-parked" autos. The same is true, more or less, in most parts of town. Nothing is done about it, so far as I can tell.

Anyone with sensitive eyes, especially if he must wear glasses, is tortured by blinding headlights on autos he meets, lights where the strong beam is turned up, not down. Nothing seems to be done about it.

The law says, in turning to your left, make the wide turn outside the sidewalk of the street into which you are driving. In Los Angeles this law is enforced but in St. Louis it is not. I seldom turn from Union into Maple that some fellow who is behind me does not take advantage of my observance of the law and dart past on my left. Same is quite frequent on other streets. Nothing is ever done about it, so far as I know.

A few weeks ago I failed to see a "no left turn" sign at the corner of Tower Grove and Manchester. I had not been there since the sign was installed and was so busy looking out for pedestrians and vehicles ahead of me that I did not look on the sidewalk for a sign. A high one, not low enough to be easily seen and not in the street, where I couldn't help seeing it. First offense. Thirteen dollars and a cuff. "See that you do not come here again" was what I got. No wonder some people say, "What is the matter with St. Louis?"

DOCTOR.

Why He Doesn't Vote.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REPLYING to your editorial headed "Interesting but Not True." All right, if you think I am wrong, just continue your farce of pitting Tweedle-dee against Tweedle-dum. Don't mind me. Maybe I do belong to a negligible minority, but what is nobility in my estimate of half the people to whom you refer as the "defaulting boobies"? You intimate that my failure to vote is perhaps more censurable than that of the defaulting boobies. Now, I have asked other newspaper men who write editorials about vote slacking, how a single voter could vote intelligently prior to 1924. They didn't know. And you don't, either. So I will ask you a easier one: How can an anti-prohibitionist vote intelligently? You will probably admit that anti-prohibitionists do not belong to the "snobbish intelligentsia."

The people of Missouri defeated prohibition by a sweeping majority and in 30 days our Representatives (?) ratified the eighteenth amendment. Everybody, including the editor of the Post-Dispatch, and excepting all politicians, bootleggers and a few lost souls who can't mind their own business, are opposed to prohibition. Will you kindly explain why the ants are not the majority party? Whenever events do not turn out as some people think they should, they condemn the people. It never occurs to them that the silence of such a large number of people on election day is about the only means they have of proving that Barnum was wrong.

DR. ENLOE'S TELEPHONE CALLS.

An examination of telephone tolls charged to the State Board of Health shows a number of long-distance calls by Dr. Enloe, when secretary of the board, to Dr. Horton of Purdy. The record does not show the character of the calls, but since they were charged to the Board of Health the inference necessarily is that either they were official business or Dr. Enloe practiced a petty graft by having the State pay for his private telephone conversations.

In view of the unpleasant circumstances in which Dr. Enloe and Dr. Horton are involved, an explanation of these telephone calls is imperative. As the public is aware from recent exposure by the Post-Dispatch, Dr. Horton received money from applicants for examination before the Board of Health whose credentials were dubious. These applicants paid Dr. Horton the money, they say, on Dr. Horton's professional influence with Dr. Enloe. The unsavory revelations caused a sensation which threatened for a time to disrupt the Board of Health, when Dr. North, president of the board, and Dr. Stewart, secretary, informed Gov. Baker they would resign unless Dr. Enloe's resignation was demanded. Gov. Baker, at first impressed with the gravity of the situation, was in favor of Enloe resigning, but subsequently he changed front, decided to stand back of his friend and political adviser, Enloe, and made it plain that Drs. Stewart and North could resign if they wished.

As regards the relations between Dr. Enloe and Dr. Horton the public has been in the dark. The only information on this subject was the statements of men who admittedly were willing to buy the privilege of taking an examination to practice medicine in Missouri that they had paid bribe money to Dr. Horton. There was also Dr. Enloe's denial of any special friendship with Horton, who, he said, was simply a casual acquaintance. That denial is now challenged by the testimony of the telephone record. Dr. Enloe, surely, cannot have been accustomed to call up casual acquaintances by long-distance telephone and charge the bill to the State.

These telephone calls do not, of course, convict Dr. Enloe of any wrongdoing. But in connection with all the circumstances they are an embarrassing bit of evidence. They should be explained. They would be explained voluntarily by Dr. Enloe, who holds two important appointive offices, if he had any proper conception of his duty and responsibility to the public. An explanation will be demanded by Gov. Baker of this man whom he has so signally and substantially rewarded if the Governor has any proper conception of his responsibility to public opinion or any adequate concern for his administration's reputation and the status of the medical profession in Missouri.

MR. BORAH AND THE BELGIAN DEBT.

Senator Borah's displeasure is a fearsome thing. It has wrecked treaties, killed appropriations, scuttled many a proposed law. But there are limits even to the power of the mighty man from Idaho. If he is to oppose the Belgian debt settlement, those limits are likely to be defined.

"If the Belgian settlement," he is quoted as saying to Senator Smoot, "is to serve as a precedent, it cannot be defended." But no one has attempted to defend it on that basis. It was made clear that the Belgian debt had a unique status, and that the principles followed in its settlement would not apply to other allied debts.

The Belgian debt terms, established by the administration with a delicate regard for the special status granted Belgium by President Wilson, have been generally approved by the country. To waive interest on the pre-war obligation was an act of enlightened statesmanship, having its roots in certain peculiar circumstances not present in the cases of Italy and France.

It has been said of Senator Borah that he is sound on domestic problems, but frequently wrong in his judgment of international affairs. Of course, it is by no means clear that he intends to make a fight against the Belgian debt settlement. If he does, however, he will have the battle of his life.

As chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Borah is necessarily deeply concerned with such matters as this. But this concern should not, as it seems to have done in some instances, give him the delusion that he is Secretary of State.

CAESAR, MUSSOLINI'S IDOL.

Asked why he worked all the time with a bust of Julius Caesar peeping over his shoulder, Mussolini replied: "He is my ideal, my master. Julius Caesar is the greatest man that ever lived."

Julius Caesar was a product of his time. His efficiency as a politician, leader of armies and statesman cannot be denied. But there his greatness ends. As an example, to would-be great men, and especially leaders of peoples, of our day, his faults render him impossible. Early in life, as a politician, he resorted to wholesale bribery, and incurred enormous debts by lavish expenditure of money to win popularity. As a General he did not hesitate to slaughter women and children to gain a victory. At the outbreak of his military career 368,000 Swiss were migrating by entire families from their crowded mountain country towards the Atlantic coast. Caesar fell upon them with his legions and left only 110,000 alive.

But it was at his later days, after returning to Rome in triumph, that he failed to measure up to true greatness, although he did accomplish many needed reforms. Summing up his life and admitting his claim to fame, the Encyclopedia Britannica historian says of him: "As to his public character, no agreement is possible between those who regard Caesarism as a great political creation and those who hold that Caesar, by destroying liberty, lost a great opportunity and crushed the sense of dignity in mankind." This he did by all kinds of usurpations. He increased the body of Senators to 900, but treated it with the utmost contempt. He did the same with regard to the ancient magistracies, and thus, as the historian says, "began the process by which the Emperors undermined the self-respect of their subjects and eventually came to rule over a nation of slaves."

We doubt if even Mussolini would defend the permission given his admirers by Caesar to place his statue in the temple with the inscription "To the unconquerable God," and his acceptance of divine honors. If ever an idol had feet of clay, it was this example of splendid natural endowments, coupled with the most towering personal ambition that would override all obstacles to gain its end. If we might call Caesar the first Fascist we might also be permitted to hope that no modern follower will ever be able to work as much harm to the ideals of true progress.

MR. COOLIDGE'S "IFS."

President Coolidge's announced intention to seek the nomination for President in 1928 hangs upon several important "ifs." He will run, it is said, if his policies for the next three years are successful, and if prosperity exists in the year preceding the national convention.

There is another "if" which Mr. Coolidge's supporters are dismissing lightly, namely, if the President's short service as successor to Mr. Harding does not count as a term. Roosevelt bumped against the tradition limiting the election of Presidents for a third term, although four years had intervened between his service and his nomination for what was generally regarded as a third term. What the conclusion of the country will be with regard to the third term question has yet to be discovered.

We suggest another "if," which would have a bearing upon Mr. Coolidge's popularity. Reduction of income taxes is extremely popular. The actual accomplishment of tax reductions and eliminations, as outlined, will bring a large measure of good will to the Coolidge administration.

One other accomplishment would add tremendously to Coolidge's strength with the people, and that is tariff reduction. If the President would press through a program reducing the tariff taxes which are a heavy burden upon consumers and are largely responsible for the high cost of living, his popularity among the plain people would be greatly increased.

KEEP HIM CAGED.

A notorious St. Louis gangster is serving a seven-year term in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta for robbing a Frisco freight car at Mosele, Mo. His name is Ray Renard. That robbery was a trivial offense, a peccadillo, a lark, so to speak, in Renard's career of crime. Murder and burglary were Renard's profession for years, by his own confession. Yet for all his crimes he never felt the weight of the law's supposedly heavy hand except in the instance of the freight-car theft. Considering his record that seven-year sentence is a mere love tap.

But the sentimentalists have rallied to Renard's aid. They don't want him to pay this small debt to the law. They are petitioning the Federal Government to pardon him. Fortunately, one protesting voice is heard—that of Wayne Ely, who, as Assistant United States District Attorney, prosecuted Renard and his accomplices in the Mosele theft and convicted them. Mr. Ely indignantly refuses to join in the appeal for clemency. His reasons are Renard's villainous record.

Renard has but one claim for public consideration: He turned on the gang he had run with for years and as the State's witness gave testimony which helped to send Colbeck and a number of other gangsters to Leavenworth. But Mr. Ely does not believe that Renard gave his testimony from any sense of remorse or repentance. He thinks Renard's motive was hatred for his former associates.

It is immaterial what the motive was, so far as Renard's deserts are concerned. Justice demands that he serve this sentence, the safety of society demands it, the dignity of the law demands it. If we are ever going to get anywhere in the solution of the crime problem which is recognized as a national menace, we must uphold the judgments of the law. Crime is and will continue to be a safe and profitable vocation so long as we coddle criminals and kiss them out of prison before they have warmed their cells.

Mr. Ely rendered a distinct public service both as a lawyer and a citizen in opposing a pardon for Renard.

THE PULLMAN PORTER.

We regard with distrust this movement to organize the Pullman porters into a labor union. Its success would plunge us into gloom. The Pullman porter is, beyond doubt, an artist, and should not be subjected to the leveling influence of rules and by-laws. What rules and by-laws, moreover, could be constructed to govern the conduct of a Pullman porter engaged in ministering to the happiness of a carful of passengers?

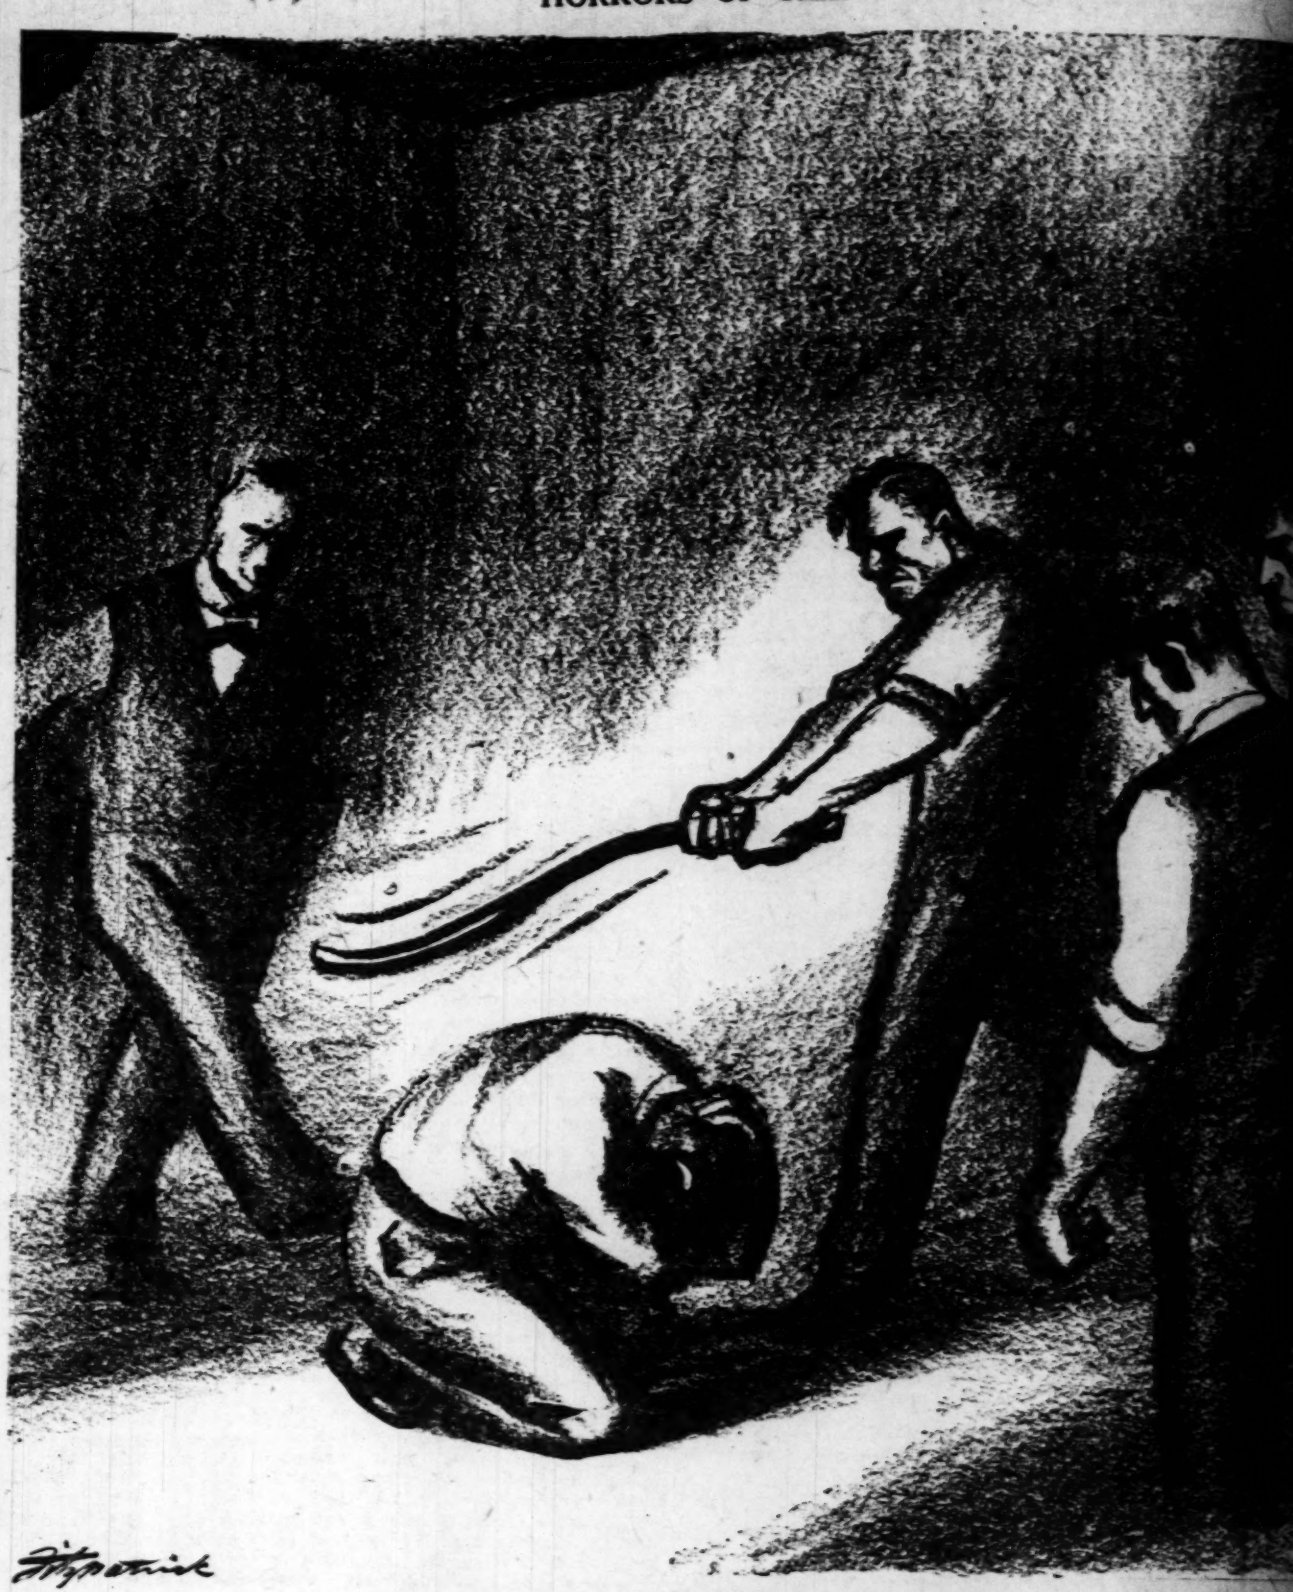

Of course, in terming the Pullman porter an artist, we do not mean that all his works are masterpieces. When the Pullman porter arouses one from sleep two hours before the train arrives, that is not art. When, however, he gallops down the aisle with a blanket at 3 a. m., to cover the frosted legs of the man in upper 8, that is art.

It may be that George is poorly paid and that his working conditions are not all that they might be. But there is no other remedy than to give him a button and a handbook specifying his conduct in any contingency? Certainly there must be. We must increase our tips. Seventy-five cents, after all, is a small price to pay for George's services. And even when those services consist only of a few flourishes of the whisk-broom, his kindly presence in the car is worth something.

We speak thus feelingly because George, the Pullman porter, is a person to be preserved in his present state of charm and usefulness, because George under the beady eye of a walking delegate might lose his individuality. His sunny "Yes sah" in a car filled with dyspeptic travelers is easily worth an extra quarter.

BEAUTY.

Spirit of beauty, breathing warm
Through this enchanting human form.
Wilt thou eternally persist
When she no longer shall exist?
Though thou shalt never cease to be,
Though thou shalt never cease to see
With scattered marks of thy intent,
Nowhere dost thou more truly live
Than in this girl superlative.
The rose's charm and daisy's grace
Hide from the glory of her face:
Hushed is the music of the bird
When her entrancing voice is heard;
Wonders are moving in her eye
Profounder than the starry sky.
But how can human speech express
Or art portray her loveliness?
Wherefore I'm haunted by the fear:
Should ever the dark day appear
When Helen is no more alive—
O Beauty, how canst thou survive?

PLINTHOUGROS.

THE BEAUTY IN LANGUAGE.

Criticism, well-meant, void of cynicism, Merely stating the facts as we see and hear them and commenting on them, and being besides, general, not personal, should occasion no offense, but it does. For that reason one is on delicate ground in discussing the absence of harmony in the attitude, the bearing and the language of a pretty girl whose beauty impresses you, and wakes you to look at her again; linger in your thoughts as would a pleasing picture on the wall. "Yea-ah"—Who has not heard this expression, now so prevalent?
On whose senses does it not jar, coming from a pretty girl? On whose senses does it not jar—the slang and inelegances heard among almost any group of pretty girls who meet on the streets? It is no business of ours, perhaps—let them demean themselves as they like—it is their loss, not ours; but we all like pretty girls, and a girl may be pretty without being good-looking; even a homely girl is pretty and adorable when she smiles—if that unmistakable evidence of culture is beaming from her eyes. And besides, they dress to attract. Can the girls believe that a man's eyes, his thoughts, his critical observations go no further than their pretty gowns and faultless complexions?
Let the girls, whom we all adore, tear this matter by cultivating that demeanor and that beauty of language to which none of us is indifferent; and which renders them doubly adorable and pleasing to the eye and senses. "Yea-ah." The parted lips, giving vent to that expression, may not be less sweet and less kissable than before, but somehow we feel that they have lost some of their charm. Beauty is beauty; and we go away reflecting and pondering how these varied inelegances could make such a difference. But they do.

THE CANOPY OF HEAVEN.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

RADIO waves do not go out, even tele-graphically, in all directions. The waves heaven, heretofore a figure of speech, are the Dark Ages, is so the scientific world us, an "ionized region," which deflects electro-magnetic waves in something of the same manner that the dome of the Capitol deflects whispers. Anyone who has been in Washington on a night when the waves tried whispering to a friend across the country hall under the dome. The waves do the same thing on a grander scale, causing the waves to go around the globe.
If it were necessary to illustrate the coincidence of the dome of the Capitol hall carom off the sky to the earth and again and so on until, like the stone in a stone thrown into water, it passes on the spaciousness of the atmosphere.

The theory has been extended far beyond it was advanced from Heavlyside, in the and from Kennedy, in the United States.
Thus the roof of the sky is known to Kennedy-Heavlyside layer. What the scientists on the trail of the shadow of was the unexplained phenomenon of radio wave lengths, which would be picked up miles away, disappear, and then reappear hundreds of miles further on. The waves reflecting layer above it all become waves were merely bouncing up and down. And when they were up, they were up, and loud speaker.

The navy, which is partly responsible for the confirmation of the theory, has will have a great influence on the development of radio.

OPERA

Salazar, Escobar and Toniolo Form Supreme Cast of Goltzman Cast.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

WITH Manuel Salazar, Maria Escobar and Rhea Toniolo assembly in the same cast the first time last night at the Municipal Theater. Impresario Gol-tzman presented a stellar trio in "Rasputin" which would illumine any opera house in the world. Shining house was given by Miss Eliza with Kerr and Messrs. Martino, Nicolich and Oliviero.
It was easily the supreme performance of the series thus far, and it was welcomed as such by another large audience.

Mr. Salazar's tragic genius of voice and action, together with the infinite detail he has lavished on the part of Radames, raised his travesty even above the height of Friday night. Miss Escobar's singular, with its clarion clarity, again proved ideal for open-air singing, and she acted the title role with masterful artistry and emotion.
Rhea Toniolo's sumptuous mezzo-soprano, with its heavy-fibered but never mannish low register and its golden upper voice, again created a profound impression.

In addition to the quality of its singers, this production boasts the most opulent stage pictures ever framed between the oaks of the Municipal Theater. First there is the stately conservatory scene; then the apartment of America, with its lovely dance of Moorish slaves; and finally the thunderous climax of the return of Radames, with more than 300 persons on the stage, richly choral and instrumental rehearsal for the finale Miss Florence Radolph—all in all, an epochal achievement in stage and vocal pa-country.

It is being proved each night that the two-dimensional sets employed are neither artistic nor unpleasant. A light wind blew down a center panel and finally returned the flimsy effigy of Phthah, so that in the second scene the company paid its origins to a prostrate god.

Tonight Aida, Radames, America and Amonaro will be sung respectively by Elda Vettori, Forrest Lamont, Maria Witkowska and Robert Ringling, the last a novelty in the cast. Vittorio Vercé will direct. The concluding performance of this opera will take place tomorrow night.

BRANCHES THROUGHOUT STATE PLANNED BY WELFARE LEAGUE

Organization Conducting Campaign for Extension of Its Work in Missouri.

In order to make its work Statewide, the Missouri Welfare League, the operations of which have been confined in the past largely to St.
Louis and Jefferson City, is conducting a campaign for a branch in each town and city throughout the State.

In the present campaign each person who contributes $2 will be given a membership. The league for the last five years has been working for the prevention of debauchery and crime, principally among minor children.

A State committee, with members in practically all cities and towns, has been formed. Gilbert C.
Goodrich, president of the league, announced. Passage of a bill for creation of an intermediate reformatory so that the reformatory at Boonville may be used exclusively for boys is one aim of the league.

they quit the Wild West show in that town, cut it cold.

He Kept Out of Vaudeville

The first job Frank James got after his release from custody was in a shoe store in Nevada, Mo., where he "made good" for several years. He worked also in a shoe store in Dallas, Tex., for some time. Then he settled down in St. Louis, where he became doorman at the Standard Theater, "home of variety," owned by Col. Ed Butler. For years he worked there, supporting his wife and child on a salary which for a long time was only $75 a month. Standing offers at $500 a week, or more if necessary, to appear in a blood-and-thunder melodrama depicting Missouri outlaws, did not tempt him.

ADVERTISINGMENT HAY FEVER BANISHED IN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS

Cleveland Specialist's Prescription Guaranteed to Relieve

Tens of thousands of Hay Fever sufferers have been given instant relief by Dr. Platt's famous Rinex Prescription. Medical science has discovered that this baneful disease is not a mere surface irritation, but that it comes from plant poisons absorbed into the blood. This causes a deep-seated poisoning. The Rinex Prescription, taken internally in capsule form, actually reaches this vicious poisoning and neutralizes it. Sneezing usually stops in half an hour. Runny nose, sore itching eyes, headache, fever—all these symptoms disappear. This is the Rinex guarantee. You get complete relief in twenty-four hours or the $1.00 purchase price is refunded by the druggist from whom you buy. Rinex is also guaranteed for Rose Fever, Catarrh, Asthma and Head Colds. You can get it from any good druggist. © 1932 by The Clinical Lab. Co., Cleveland, O. Schneider's Pharmacy, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Kromm's (both, St. Louis) and all Good Druggists.

DINING SERVICE THAT PLEASES

The James doorbell suffered. Mr. James said "I'll fix 'em" wrote on a card, "This is Frank James' door-bell," pinned the card just above the bell-button—and the boys never played tricks there again.

Frank James died Feb. 15, 1915, on the Samuel farm, known now as "James Farm," where he grew up. Following his expressed wish, his remains were cremated in St. Louis, at the Missouri Crematorium. From a signed article, "The Frank James I Knew," which I wrote for the St. Louis Republic and which was published a few years after his death, I quote these remarks:

"Following his surrender, trial and acquittal, for a full generation he lived the normal life of the average man in good standing in his community. Leaving aside his outlawry as a matter of history, not to say a thing which I have believed for many years. I have believed, and still believe, that there never was a vestige of what is called the criminal instinct in Frank James. He never was a criminal at heart. Under happier conditions he would have become, in my opinion, a man of high prominence in the state. His intelligence was of a high order, very far above the average.

"I am painfully aware that there are those who will read with scorn and acquittal, for a full generation he lived the normal life of the average man in good standing in his community. Leaving aside his outlawry as a matter of history, not to say a thing which I have believed for many years. I have believed, and still believe, that there never was a vestige of what is called the criminal instinct in Frank James. He never was a criminal at heart. Under happier conditions he would have become, in my opinion, a man of high prominence in the state. His intelligence was of a high order, very far above the average.

He Lived It Down
Not do I hold a brief in support of the outlaw deeds of the Jameses and the Youngers and their score of followers in the years following the Civil War. They did desperate deeds. Frank James, however, lived down that sad, unhappy life. He made good. He fulfilled to the letter the promises he made to the governor of his native state.

"I see men walking the streets every now and then whom I regard as worse criminals, getting right down to the bone and sinew of character, than Frank James ever was. They are social outlaws, business bandits, commercial cut-throats.

"Frank James reformed and repented and rebuilt his shattered temple of life. He is dead. Let us have charity. Whilst charity covereth a multitude of sins, also does it reveal virtues.

"Cole Younger, last of the three outstanding figures in border banditry, died at his home in Lee's Summit, March 21, 1916, after a year's illness from dyspepsia and heart disease. He took to his grave, imbedded in his body, 17 bullets. He had been wounded 26 times, but some of the mistakes that did not go clean through were removed. My notion is that he was just about the most shot-up man that ever lived to be 72 years of age and die in bed with boots off.

"The vitality was a matter of marvel. An old friend once joked with Cole about his encysted bullets. "I reckon," he suggested, "one might drill almost anywhere in you and strike lead."

"I reckon that's so," Cole admitted. From the Lee's Summit Journal of date two days after his death this excerpt is quoted: "Virtually everyone in this community was the former bandit's friend."

"Many children knew him as 'Uncle Cole,' and he was never too busy or too sick to greet them pleasantly. Younger was a member of the Christian Church here, having been converted during a revival meeting held in the summer of 1913. He was a regular attendant up to the time he was confined to his home. He became a good citizen and an active church worker.

"Cole Younger's life since returning to Lee's Summit has been that of a good man, whose only desire was to live peacefully with those loved ones whom he had been denied. Everyone here who knew him was his friend, and all gave him that conscious help to make his days and life peaceful."

Younger's pastor, the Rev. J. T. Webb, conducted the funeral services at the Christian Church. At the head of his grave, where his lies buried beside his brother, James, is a handsome monument bearing this inscription:

COLE YOUNGER
1844-1916
Rest In Peace
Our Dear Beloved.

Next to James lies Robert, next to Robert "mother"—the sole inscription on the tiny headstones of the gentleman who suffered so greatly for the sins of the fathers who stole naked negroes from their haunts in the African wilds and shipped them to the American colonies in the filthy holds of slave-ships.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Congress will be asked to pass on the controversy over the use of gas in warfare, and it is understood here that Senator Wadsworth of New York will lead the fight against harrington.

The Washington arms conference voted to oppose gas warfare and now leaders of a movement to reopen the subject would have Congress consider it. A showdown in the House and in the Senate can be had by introduction of a bill favoring the use of gas in the event of war.

A subcommittee of the Washington conference made a report on gas warfare, but it was not published at the time. Because of the recent conference at Geneva, where Representative Theodore E. Burton, representing the United States, tried to get action restricting the international shipment of war gas, but failed, interest has been renewed here.

A further study of the subject will be made. In the meantime, manufacturers of chemicals and others who doubt the wisdom of banning gas as a weapon will try to create sentiment in Congress to prevent adverse action.

Say Report Was Suppressed. The report of the subcommittee of the Washington conference will be used to influence Congress. It was disregarded by the principal committee, which voted against the use of gas.

Advocates of gas warfare charge that the subcommittee report was suppressed. The report asked the Washington conference to take into consideration all the facts and not act hastily.

In part the report which will be used by advocates of gas warfare reads:

"The subcommittee does not at present see how to have a limitation of the use of the poisonous gases on their physical, chemical or physiological properties, and attention is drawn to the fact that many high explosives produce toxic gases that as frequently cause death as do those termed chemical-warfare gases."

"It is not possible to prohibit or supervise research in respect to such gases as are used in chemical warfare, and there is no possibility of being certain that all countries would abide by an agreement to communicate the results of their research."

Gases Used in Peace. "Owing to the enormous use of potential warfare gases in peace, it is impossible to take effective steps to prohibit production of these gases. Of the gases actually used in the world war, several are extensively used in peace. These include such useful materials as chlorine, bromine, phosphene, chloropicrin and hydrocyanic acid gas, with others which are likely to come into use at an early date."

"It only would be possible to restrict production of such gases by a universal international regulation of chemical industry and commerce, giving to each and all nations the means to provide for its own need, but no more."

Even if only one Power in the world refused to keep an international agreement to abstain from using poison gases on its declaration of war, the general agreement automatically would be nullified."

HANGS HIMSELF IN SHED

Adolph Kaspar, 52 years old, of 3178 Pennsylvania avenue, a tailor, was found dead, hanging in a shed at the rear of his home at 6:45 p. m. yesterday when his son, Francis, 17 years old, searched the yard for the father who had disappeared from the house.

Kaspar had used a window ash cord and had tied it to a rafter of the shed, standing on a step ladder which he kicked from under him. Mrs. Kaspar told police her husband had been out of employment for five months and had been ill.

14 TO 50 PIKATES' ABILITY UNDER FIRE ONE OF FEATURES OF SEASON

106 Compete in Women's Title Golf Tournament

Mrs. Horn, the Former Miriam Burns, Favored to Win Title Again.

By the Associated Press.
ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 24.—A host of star women golfers, including four former champions, and a number of runners-up in previous events, promised unusually keen competition for high honors as the annual Women's Western Golf Association tournament got under way at the White Bear Yacht Club today.

Hard and fast fairways greeted the first of the 106 entrants to take off in the 18-hole qualifying round to decide the 32 who are to enter match play for the 1925 title. Chicago entries dominated the field and it was expected that many of the qualifiers would be from that city. Nearly 50 Chicago players were among the list of contestants. Kansas City, Detroit, Omaha, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn., were among other cities represented.

Mrs. Horn is Favored.
The pretournament does not Mrs. Joseph Horn of Chicago, formerly Miriam Burns, who won the championship two years ago, in the favorite's class to capture the trophy. In practice round over the White Bear course last week, she played brilliant golf, including a card of 77, two under women's par for White Bear. Other former champions seeking to repeat in 1925 include Mrs. Dave Gault of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhardt of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Melvin Jones of Chicago.

Red Sox Make Final Appearance Of the Season Here Today

Milton Gaston Will Hurl for Sisler Against Charles Ruffing, Who Has Pitched Some Good Games for Lee Fohl's Tail-Enders.

By Herman Wecke.
The tail-end Boston Red Sox will make their final appearance of the season here today. Charles Ruffing, young right hander, who has been one of Fohl's leading pitchers this year, will go to the hill for the Sox, while Milton Gaston is due to pitch for Sisler.

In winning the third class of the series, 5 to 2, the Browns made good use of the safeties garnered off Howard Ehmke, the lanky right hander. Only seven swats were made off the Sox flinger, but six of these were for extra bases and all but one figured in the scoring. The only wallop that did not figure in the scoring was a triple by Robertson, after two batters had been retired in the seventh.

For three rounds, Ehmke stopped the men of Sisler without a safety. But in the fourth, doubles by Rice and Sisler and a triple by Bennett, with an error by Prothro thrown in, netted three runs. That, as matters turned out, would have been enough, but just to make it safe the home slingers picked up a marker in each of the sixth and eighth rounds.

Joe Giard, the young left hander, who came as part of the trade that sent Shocker to the Yankees, came through with another good game. Giard was wild and yielded one more safety than Ehmke, but when the pinch came, the southpaw was there.

The victory was Giard's seventh of the season. He has been defeated three times, and has a winning percentage of .700. This makes him the leading flinger of the Sox. He pitched for the Sox last winter. And Giard was sent along more as excess baggage.

Walker to Risk Crown Tonight

Both Freedman and the Welter Champion Expect to Weigh Under 147.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, will take his title into the ring with him when he meets Sailor Freedman tonight at the East Chicago arena. Both fighters will be under the 147-pound welterweight limit.

The row over the referee, which for a time threatened to bring about cancellation of the match, was settled yesterday, when Jim Mullen was accepted by both sides. Walker and Freedman finished off their training with road work yesterday.

MUDGE AND HUTCHISON ENTER W. A. U. SWIM

Charles Mudge of Westlake Club and Frank Hutchison of the New Coliseum A. C. are the first swimmers to file entries for the Western A. U. one-mile championship swim to be held in the New Coliseum tank on Thursday night, Sept. 3. Mudge won last year's event and gained a leg on the trophy which eventually becomes the permanent property of the swimmer winning three times.

Hutchison, a newcomer in local aquatic competitions, finished second to Mudge in the 880-yard event of the Mundy championship meet at the Marquette pool last Thursday night. He has also shown exceptional prowess as a contender in the 220-yard event of the city championship tournament being held each Tuesday night at the New Coliseum pool.

The third round of the city championship pool will be held tomorrow night. Thirty-eight paddlers are scheduled to compete in the five events of the program.

Genaro, Beaten Champion, Asks Return Battle

LaBarba, 1924 Olympic Champion, Makes Quick Climb to Flyweight Throne.

New Champion Plans Ring Career Solely To Finance Education

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—FIDEL LA BARBA, who defeated Frankie Genaro of New York in a 10-round bout here last Saturday, plans to remain a boxer only long enough to finance his education at Stanford University, which he plans to enter in September, 1926, with a view of fitting himself for a medical career.

Genaro was twice victor over the late Pancho Villa. Articles signed before Saturday's bout stated that the fight was of the flyweight championship of the world. La Barba's victory, according to the articles, was a desired acquisition among promoters and dozens of offers were received by his manager.

MOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 24.—Macon lunched six of his hits off Wilson in the first two innings, while a Woolfolk was tight in the circles and the visitors won a 6-0-3 decision over the locals yesterday in an Elmo Louisa game. Woolfolk walked six men, but was effective when his meat runs.

France Has Fine Chance to Reach Challenge Round, Tilden Writes

Tennis Champion Says Lacoste and Borotra Are Very Likely to Win Three of Four Singles Matches, From Australia in Interzone Final.

By William T. Tilden.
(Copyright 1925.)
The interzone final round of the Davis Cup is almost at hand, and it is well to glance for a moment at a team which many regard as the logical challengers of the United States.

France, with Rene Lacoste, Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Pierre Barthelemy, is one of the strongest combinations any country has placed in the field in recent years. One cannot doubt the strength when one remembers that for two years Lacoste and Borotra met in the finals at Wimbledon. In 1924 Borotra won the English title after defeating Vincent Richards in the semifinal round, but this year it was Lacoste who won, following his crushing defeat of J. O. Anderson of Australia, in the semifinals.

Lacoste Greatly Improved.
Rene Lacoste is a greatly improved player this year. He has suffered no defeats and has repeatedly defeated Borotra, Cockett, Washer and all the other continental stars.

Lacoste was a great player last year, as he proved by his wins from Rattenstone, O'Hara-Wood and Norton, but everyone who has seen him play this year is agreed that, with his added speed and experience, he is now in the very first flight in the world. If that is so, then Lacoste should score two victories for France in the interzone final round, no matter which country wins the American zone.

I am anxiously awaiting Lacoste's arrival, for I am convinced he is now at the very top.

Jean Borotra is still the Bounding Basque of last year, possibly a little more convincing in his ground game and still the same sensational volleyer.

Borotra Hard to Figure.
Frankly, I am of the opinion that Anderson of Australia, or Alonso of Spain would be too strong from the baseline for Borotra and the Pacificerson, with his crushing service and net attack, might be able to force him away from the barrier so that he would meet defeat.

Borotra is a hard proposition to figure. At his best, on one of his inspired days, he is capable of beating anyone, as witnessed by his crushing defeat of Vincent Richards at Wimbledon last year. If things go badly for him and he becomes upset and worried, he is only second-string caliber, as proved by his terrific match with Frebleman in the United States championship last year and his decisive defeat by Hennessy a round later in the same event. France's chance to producing an inspired day when he challenges lies largely on Borotra's needs it.

Not Strong in Doubles.
The doubles may be Lacoste and Borotra, Brugnon and Borotra or Lacoste and Brugnon, with the chances on the first team playing the Davis Cup tie. Personally, I believe Brugnon and Borotra at their best are the best French combination, but I hardly think they will be used.

I cannot see much hope for France in the doubles, but I believe Lacoste and Borotra have an excellent chance to win three of the four singles.

FRENCHMAN WINNER OF CYCLING RACE

By the Associated Press.
AMSTERDAM, Aug. 24.—The final heat of the professional 100-kilometer cycling race for the championship yesterday was won by Grassin of France in 19 20m 4-5s. Snook of Holland was second, 10m meters behind. Sorens, France, third and Linart, Belgium, fourth.

Medalist Wins In First Round Of Park Tourney

Extra-Hole Matches Held Up by Canny Cash Men Who Demand Four Bits

Clarke Morie, 16-year-old medalist in the Municipal Golf Tournament, gave Robert Held, younger brother of Eddie, State champion, a sound trimming in the first round of match play at Forest Park, 4 up and 3.

Most of the opening round matches yesterday were closely contested and an interesting situation arose when the first extra-hole match went to the first tie. The tournament is under the auspices of the Municipal Athletic Association, though the Forest Park Golf Club is doing the work and giving all the prizes except the medal to winner. But the checkers at the public course don't care what is a tournament.

As the golfers started to the off for the nineteenth hole the cash man demanded that each player show an annual permit or throw down 50 cents on the counter. The Cans and Kaisers were easy birds to convince, compared to the checkers and cops at the public course and the extra hole contestants didn't get away with their line about "just an extra hole."

Several extra-hole players defaulted rather than plunk down an extra four-bit piece, "as a matter of principle," you understand.

STUDENT SLAIN OVER REMARK TO GIRL

Attacked by Gangsters in Chicago—Companion Slugged, but Escapes.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—A University of Chicago medical student was beaten to death and a companion slugged by gangsters yesterday, following a fancied insult to three sisters, which was resented by the escort of the girls.

The slain student was John Henry Klassin, 25 years old, of Manhattan, Kan., a junior in the School of Medicine, and his companion, James R. Mitcham, a son of A. T. Mitcham, wealthy oil operator of Fort Worth, Tex. Eight men, including Archie Carlini, 21, named by the police as the leaders of the attack, are under arrest, confessions having been obtained from four of them.

Klassin's skull was fractured, apparently by a paving stone, and he died without regaining consciousness, after being picked up by police from a South Side station shortly after the attack.

Miss Inez, Paris, 16-year-old daughter of an Italian banker, was standing on the front porch of her home with her younger sisters, Dolores and Irma, and her sweetheart, Carlini, when the students passed. "You are certainly a lucky fellow to have three girls," one of them said to Carlini, according to the story told by Inez. "Let's make it a party and go somewhere."

"What do you think these girls are?" Carlini asked, appearing to be angry. "They're decent, and there's not going to be any party."

Students Apologize. Then, Inez said, the students apologized and walked away. Mitcham, who is being held as a witness, said that after they left the vicinity of the Paris home, they went to a restaurant, thinking the matter was ended, but on coming out, found Carlini and his companions awaiting them. The students were both slugged, fought back, but were overwhelmed.

Mitcham escaped from the attackers and summoned police, who found Klassin with his head crushed. Victor Basso, one of the men under arrest, admitted he had struck the student with a piece of concrete paving block.

Near by the police found a razor with which Klassin attempted to defend himself. Klassin had been supplementing his allowance from home by working as a barber, and his friends explained the razor evidently was being taken home from his place of employment.

A Good Reputation. Although Klassin was believed to have had $30 plus his weekly salary in his pockets at the time of the attack, the police found only 10 cents in his clothing. Klassin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klassin, departed for Chicago upon learning of the death of their son. Dispatches said the student bore a clean reputation in his home town, and fellow students here asserted that they did not believe he would have insulted any girl. They described him as a bashful man, who avoided girl students. They spoke similarly of Mitcham.

U. S. MINISTER TO HAITI FOUND DEAD AT MONTREAL. He Had Registered There From Rochester—Dumise Apparently Due to Natural Causes.

By the Associated Press. MONTREAL, Aug. 24.—Arthur Bailly Blanchard, United States Minister to Haiti since 1914, was found dead in his bedroom at the Mount Royal Hotel today.

Bailly Blanchard arrived in Montreal Aug. 19, but his presence here had been unknown to the American consulate. He registered as from Rochester, N. Y., although his home was in New Orleans, La. His baggage bore Washington, D. C. labels. Death was due to natural causes, a coroner's jury reported. A night watchman discovered the body.

Bailly Blanchard was born at New Orleans, Oct. 1, 1855, and had been connected with the diplomatic service since 1885, when he became private secretary to the Minister to France. During his 46 years of service he held several posts of responsibility, having been Charge d'Affaires at both Paris and Tokyo.

BEAUTY FROM A SUN BATH
By LUCREZIA BORI

Do you know the value of the sun bath as a stimulus to beauty?

LUCREZIA BORI

Really, women who have had experience with this beauty aid consider it invaluable because of its sure effect on their health and beauty.

I want to speak of it especially at this time, because there are so many women who have the opportunity to go bathing in the Summer, who should know a few facts about this beauty bath.

If you have the chance, I am sure you like to sit on the beach in your bathing suit and let the pure sunshine bathe you. Let it get into your hair, let it get into your very blood. You will feel better and you will look better.

Now, of course, you must use common sense. I do not favor lying in the broiling sun until you are fairly blistered. Take your sun bath either before you go into the water and get your suit wet, or after you come out, do not remain in your wet suit. Drying your suit on your body takes up a certain amount of your energy.

I will tell you what the women do at a certain fashionable beach. Their bath houses are of course divided from those of the men. There is a section in the center of the small dressing rooms where there is no roof and the sun fairly pours in on the wooden floor. The fair bathers remove their suits and dry themselves with a Turkish towel. Then they wrap a fresh Turkish towel about them, so that their legs are exposed as well as their arms and shoulders. Then they lie in the sun for as long as they wish. They get a bit sunburnt, to be sure, but the sun does them much more good than harm. Those who want to avoid the sunburn on their neck and face can protect them by a light covering of some kind.

Then again, a famous singer of my acquaintance spends her summers at a small exclusive mountain lake resort in Europe. Her sun bath is taken in a small row boat, and I will tell you how she manages it. She rows to the middle of the lake, clad only in her bathing suit. From this point she can be seen by no one. She slips her bathing suit off and lies down in the boat, protecting her eyes with some from her hair, leaves and her neck with a dark silk handkerchief. She declares that she feels better in every way, and she enjoys the small amount of sunburn she acquires. It is never enough to harm her beauty.

Of course all of us cannot have a lake to ourselves, but if we are in the open at all we can manage in some way to get a beauty sun-bath.

Vacation Hints.

If you are going into the country you may be glad to have a mosquito repellent with you. Mix one ounce, each, of oil of citronella and spirits of camphor and add half an ounce of oil of cedar. This can be used as a spray or applied to the exposed parts of the body. Gum camphor, bound around the forehead and wrists is a simple and excellent repellent for use at night or when indoors.

If you want to press a garment while in a hotel take out one of the dresser drawers, turn it upside down; lay two or three Turkish towels on this, cover with a face towel and you have a good ironing board. Of course you will have a small electric iron in your trunk for pressing wearing apparel.

DAMSON PLUM JAM.

Wash and pick over carefully a six-pound basket of ripe damson plums. Put the plums into the preserve kettle with four and a half pounds of sugar and a cupful of cold water. Let melt together and heat very slowly until the juice begins to run, then cook slowly, skimming carefully and thoroughly. Cook until a little of the juice tried on a cold plate shows a tendency to jelly, then remove from the fire and fill hot, dry jam pots. When cold, cover down with paraffin melted on top of each pot and cover with brown paper pasted tightly with white of egg or paste.

BAKED CORN AND TOMATOES.

Pare and slice four tomatoes thin. Shuck and silk six or eight ears of fresh corn, depending on the size. Take a sharp knife and cut the corn from the cobs, not cutting deep enough to get the little shucks, then scrape down the milk, with the back of the knife. Butter a pudding dish and lay in a layer of tomatoes, then add a layer of corn, dot with butter, dust with pepper and salt and sprinkle with a little sugar. Dust over a tablespoonful of fine crumbs, then add a layer of tomatoes and repeat as before. Put the seasoning over the top and sprinkle with a little grated cheese. Pour in a small cupful of cream and bake about a half hour in a medium oven.

LOVE

CHAPTER 54.

She rang the bell and sent the housemaid for Kate, and when she came, her cap a little wisp, Mrs. Colquhoun took the cup out into the passage to her and scolded her soundly, and it did them both good, and Kate was so much restored by this breath of normality that she was able to ask in a whisper how the master was, and Mrs. Colquhoun, simpering unconsciously into the very language of the occasion, replied that he was doing nicely.

And indeed Stephen's moans seemed less real Catherine had taken his head on her lap and was stroking and patting him. She patted and patted without stopping, and every now and then, bent down and murmured words of encouragement in his ear, or else, when she found no words because her own heart was so full of fear, she simply bent down and kissed him. Did he hear? Did he feel? She couldn't tell, but she thought his moans grew quieter, and that he seemed dimly conscious of comfort when her hand passed softly down his sunken face.

"You'll wear yourself out," said Mrs. Colquhoun, pursuing her lips to keep them from quivering. "It comforts me," said Catherine.

"You'd much better have another cup of tea."

"How passionately he loves her. I didn't quite realize."

"Loving passionately seems to get people into nice messes," said Mrs. Colquhoun grimly.

"I suppose one really oughtn't to love too much," said Catherine.

"I consider Stephen preached himself into it. That course of sermons last Lent—do you remember? I thought at the time that he was almost too eloquent. It sometimes very nearly wasn't quite what one wishes a parish to hear. The love he talked about—well, he started with St. John's ideas, but soon got away from them into something else. People, especially the servants, listened open-mouthed. They wouldn't have done that if there hadn't been something else in it besides the Bible. And you know, Catherine, one can talk oneself into anything, and in my opinion it is what Stephen did. And he came to think so much and so often of that side of life that he forgot moderation, and here he is. This is his punishment and my disgrace."

"No, no," said Catherine soothingly. "It is—it is." And Mrs. Colquhoun, who had kept up so courageously till then, bowed her head over the tea table and wept.

It would be useless, Catherine felt, to argue with poor Mrs. Colquhoun about love, so gently lifting Stephen's head on a cushion, she went over to her and sat down beside her and put her arm round her and began to stroke her, too, and murmur soothing words.

How strange it was, this night of fear stroking the Colquhouns. That queer trip they ate in a detached corner of one's mind refusing to be serious just when it most should be, actually forced her at this moment, when hope was at its faintest, to laugh inside herself at the odd turn her relationship with Stephen and his mother had taken. The collapsed Colquhouns: the towers of strength laid low; and she, the disappointed, the sinner, as Stephen thought, and perhaps he had told his mother, and she thought it too, being their only support and comforter. The collapsed Colquhouns. It really was funny—very funny—very fun.

Why, what was this? She, too, crying?

Horrible! She jumped up and hurried across to the window and flung it open as far as it would go, and stood at it with her face to the damp night air and struggled with herself, squeezing back those ill-timed tears, and as she stood there the sluggish air suddenly became a draught, and turning quickly she found the door had been opened and a strange man was framed in it with Kate in the background ushering him in. He was very red, with drops of sweat on his forehead.

"Where's that husband?" he asked, looking round the room and speaking cheerfully, though his eyes were serious. "Oh—"

Still no good to us. I never saw such a fellow. Well, his mother, then. Oh, dear—what's this? Tears? Come, come," he said, laying his hand on Mrs. Colquhoun's shoulder very kindly and looking at Catherine. "Are you the other grandmother?" he asked smiling.

"Grandmother?"

"A shocking boy. The biggest I've brought into the world for a long time."

When Virginia recovered consciousness she lay for some time with her eyes shut, frowning. She seemed to have come back from somewhere very far away, and it had been difficult, so difficult to come back at all, and she was tired out with the effort. Where had she been? She lay, trying to remember, her arms straight down by her side, the palms of her hands up, turned as if someone had flung them there like that and she had been too indifferent to move them. Her hair in two thick plaits was neatly arranged, a plait drawn down over each shoulder, and her bed was spotless and tidy.

Her mother. She shut her eyes again and thought this over, but it was no use. She didn't know what it was. It didn't bother her much with it. Her mother was sitting quite still, holding a plait of someone's dark hair against her lips and kissing it.

There was another person in the room, moving about without any noise, dressed in white. Who?

A glimmer of recollection stole into Virginia's mind. Without bothering to open her eyes—the exertion of doing that was so enormous—she managed to murmur, "Have I—had my baby?" And her mother took her hand and kissed it and told her she had, and that it was a boy. A beautiful boy, her mother said.

A beautiful boy. That was the opposite of a beautiful girl. And the nurse—of course, that white thing was the nurse—came and held a cup to her mouth and made her drink something.

Then she lay quiet again, with her eyes shut. She had had her baby. A beautiful boy. The news he had brought her, it tired her. Presently there came another flicker of recollection. Stephen. That was her husband. Where was he?

Her mother, kissing her hand again, said he had a little cold and was staying in bed. This news in no way stirred her, either. She lay, quite apathetic, her arms straight by her side, her hands palm upwards on the counterpane. Stephen; the baby; her mother; a profound indifference to them all filled her mind, still dark with the shadows of that great dim place she had clambered out of—clambered and clambered till her head was bruised and sore from head to foot, and so dead tired—so dead, dead tired.

Someone else came into the room. A man. Perhaps a doctor, for he took up her hand and held it in his for a while, and then said something to the nurse, who came and raised her head and gave her another drink—rather like what she remembered brandy used to be. Brandy in bed. What? That was what the word was—yes, brandy. Wasn't that queer, to drink brandy in bed?

But it didn't matter. Nothing mattered. It was nice when nothing mattered. So peaceful and quiet; so, so peaceful and quiet—like floating on one's back in calm water on a summer afternoon looking up at the blue sky and every now and then letting one's head sink a little, just a little, so that the cool water rippled over one's ears; or letting it sink a little more, so that the cool water rippled over one's face; and one sank and sank; gently deeper;

Perhaps a doctor, for he took up her hand and held it in his for a while, and then said something to the nurse, who came and raised her head and gave her another drink—rather like what she remembered brandy used to be. Brandy in bed. What? That was what the word was—yes, brandy. Wasn't that queer, to drink brandy in bed?

But it didn't matter. Nothing mattered. It was nice when nothing mattered. So peaceful and quiet; so, so peaceful and quiet—like floating on one's back in calm water on a summer afternoon looking up at the blue sky and every now and then letting one's head sink a little, just a little, so that the cool water rippled over one's ears; or letting it sink a little more, so that the cool water rippled over one's face; and one sank and sank; gently deeper;

But whatever she was feeling or not able to feel, she was his, his wife, to help and comfort; and if she could not reach her, he would wait by her side till she woke up again. What could it be like down in the morning, just as the gray light was beginning to creep among the trees. He couldn't go and rouse that sad house so early, so he stopped in the village and managed, after much difficulty, to induce the inn to open and let him in and give him water and a towel and promise him tea when the hour should have become more decent; and then he lay down on the horsehair sofa in the parlor and tried to sleep.

But how sleep, when he was at last so near Catherine? Just the thought of seeing her again, of looking into her eyes after their four weeks' separation, was enough to banish sleep; and then there was the anxiety about her, the knowledge that she must be crushed with sorrow, the effort to imagine life there with that poor devil of a husband.

seemed to have come back from somewhere very far away, and it had been difficult, so difficult to come back at all, and she was tired out with the effort. Where had she been? She lay, trying to remember, her arms straight down by her side, the palms of her hands up, turned as if someone had flung them there like that and she had been too indifferent to move them. Her hair in two thick plaits was neatly arranged, a plait drawn down over each shoulder, and her bed was spotless and tidy.

She opened her heavy eyes presently and saw her mother sitting by the pillow.

Her mother. She shut her eyes again and thought this over, but it was no use. She didn't know what it was. It didn't bother her much with it. Her mother was sitting quite still, holding a plait of someone's dark hair against her lips and kissing it.

There was another person in the room, moving about without any noise, dressed in white. Who?

A glimmer of recollection stole into Virginia's mind. Without bothering to open her eyes—the exertion of doing that was so enormous—she managed to murmur, "Have I—had my baby?" And her mother took her hand and kissed it and told her she had, and that it was a boy. A beautiful boy, her mother said.

She thought this over, too, frowning with the effort.

A beautiful boy. That was the opposite of a beautiful girl. And the nurse—of course, that white thing was the nurse—came and held a cup to her mouth and made her drink something.

Then she lay quiet again, with her eyes shut. She had had her baby. A beautiful boy. The news he had brought her, it tired her. Presently there came another flicker of recollection. Stephen. That was her husband. Where was he?

Her mother, kissing her hand again, said he had a little cold and was staying in bed. This news in no way stirred her, either. She lay, quite apathetic, her arms straight by her side, her hands palm upwards on the counterpane. Stephen; the baby; her mother; a profound indifference to them all filled her mind, still dark with the shadows of that great dim place she had clambered out of—clambered and clambered till her head was bruised and sore from head to foot, and so dead tired—so dead, dead tired.

Someone else came into the room. A man. Perhaps a doctor, for he took up her hand and held it in his for a while, and then said something to the nurse, who came and raised her head and gave her another drink—rather like what she remembered brandy used to be. Brandy in bed. What? That was what the word was—yes, brandy. Wasn't that queer, to drink brandy in bed?

Home-Making Helps

Economical Flower Holders.

WHERE there is a prolific fall garden, many flower receptacles are in use.

Tall papier mache tubes, such as the florists use, can be painted inside and out with black waterproof paint and varnished. They hold the long-stemmed flowers and are heavy enough so that they do not topple over. There are different sizes in the tubes to be had, and the small ones are very attractive. They may be painted black or white, then decorated with gold motifs and then be varnished. A small wooden chopping bowl painted black or white, and waterproof, varnished inside and out, makes a splendid receptacle for the large, short-stemmed flowers. One filled with heads of scarlet geraniums made a brilliant appearance, red above the black base. Small, unfired pottery bean-pots may be treated with a coat of gold paint, then decorated with small, black, silhouette figures, then covered with a coat of water-proof varnish. It is a wise precaution to paint the inside of the jar with a coat of black paint, as this fills the pores and makes the jar water-tight.

For the fall lilies, half fill a glass bowl with white sand and keep it wet. The lilies may be stuck into the sand and they keep wonderfully well in this way and may be prettily arranged in one or more colors, as desired.

One woman, with a garden bought several of the white crockery churns. She painted them in solid colors, old blue for red peonies, gold for the cosmos, soft green for the stalks of gladioli, and burnt orange for the late yellow flowers.

Mustard pots, ginger pots, wooden salt bowls and cups, may one and all be disguised by decorating and become useful containers. The newest idea is to paint glass jars, and bottles, and some very unusual results are obtained.

Knobby Knees and Scrawny Backbones

By WINIFRED BLACK

DEAR me—I never knew there were so many queer knees in the world, did you?
Great big fat knees, a sort of ugly, creepy white.

And thin, bony knees, with lumps on them—what a mercy we've had all these years when they were hidden from sight—and we never knew it and now—

Elbows—we got acquainted with them quite a while ago—they weren't so bad in the evening—even a scrawny elbow can look quite poetic with a wistful floating tulle for a disguise—and then the evening lights are always flattering.

Many a homely girl looks pretty by electric light—if she knows how to dress for it.
Collar bones—oh, yes, we know them, too—they taught us how to show them in Paris, and the girls are proud of them—the bonier the better.

Ankles—I always thought every pretty woman had a pretty pair of ankles, but oh, how full of disappointments life is.

The prettiest girl I know—she has eyes like corn flowers and hair like corn silk and a figure like a pocket Venus—but oh, those terrible ankles and how she does love to show them.

She's always crossing her knees and swinging her foot and almost saying: "Look at my ankles, I like 'em big and bony—don't you?"

And now the knees—and some of them aren't set right—have you noticed that? Did you ever dream there were so many bow-legs or so many knock-knees in the world?

What a disappointment it must be to the men.
Here they've been going through life dreaming and imagining and all at once whick—up come the skirts and there are the knees cruelly exposed to view—and in the broad daylight, too.

I wonder if the girls with the ugly knees realize the sad disillusion they are giving the poor, old, hopeful, trusting world?
I sat opposite four girls on the street car the other day and one was knock-kneed and the other had bony knee-knuckles that made you think of a rangy colt, and one was so fat that really—and only one had a pretty pair of knees—and the things that go with it.

But she had the longest dress of all of them.
Have you noticed it? Isn't it queer?
Backbones we know these days as we used to know wrists—and somehow they aren't half as pretty as we used to imagine they were.

Those little knobs now—up and down the spine—there's something so frank about them, isn't there?
Oh, well, I suppose by next year we'll be wearing our skirts sweeping the ground—but it will take a whole generation to build up the fiction about what's under those skirts again.

And that does seem rather a pity, doesn't it?

And it is your belief in yourself which will convince others of your worth.
I don't mean that you can place an exaggerated estimation on mediocre qualities and make folks believe you are a wonder. That has been tried with extremely brief success. Since it is not based on truth, nothing can survive without truth.
The fact remains that you are capable of the best. For some of us it's a bigger and brighter best than it is for others. But, however that may be, if it is our best it must be infinitely worth while and satisfactory.
If you keep the belief of your best before you as a standard, you'll find it is impossible to be satisfied with less. You will have confidence in what you know and what you can do.

And because you are sure of yourself, others will be sure of you, too. Without a word from you, they will believe in you because you thoroughly believe in yourself!

FROSTED CHOCOLATE
The easiest way to make good chocolate is to keep a chocolate syrup on hand. To make this dissolve one pound of cocoa in one-half pint of cold water. Add one and one-half cups granulated sugar dissolved in one and one-half cups warm water, then bring to boiling point. To make frosted chocolate use one-fourth cup syrup, three-fourths cup milk and one tablespoon marshmallow cream, whipped cream or half a beaten egg white for each person. Shake thoroughly together or pour from one pitcher to another and serve at once.

Escalloped Tomatoes.
One pint peeled and cut tomatoes; 1 pint grated bread crumbs; 1 level teaspoonful salt; 1 table-spoonful butter; a suggestion of pepper. Reserve three table-spoon-fuls of the bread crumbs, and spread the remainder on a pan. Brown in the oven, being careful not to burn them. Mix the tomato, browned crumbs, salt, pepper, and half the butter together, and put in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle the unbrowned crumbs on top, and dot with the remainder of the butter, cut into bits. Bake in a moderately hot oven for half an hour. The top of this dish should be brown and crisp.

Cheese and Macaroni Loaf.
One-half cupful of macaroni broken into small pieces; 1 cupful of milk; 1 cupful of soft bread crumbs; 1 table-spoonful of butter; 1 table-spoonful of chopped green pepper; 1 table-spoonful each of chopped onion and parsley; 3 eggs; 1 table-spoonful of salt; 1 cupful of grated cheese. Cook the macaroni in boiling salt water until tender, and rinse in cold water. Cook the parsley, onion, and pepper in a little water or allow it to boil away. Beat the egg white and yolk separately. Mix all the ingredients, cutting and folding in the stiffly beaten whites at the last. Line a quart baking dish with buttered paper; turn the mixture into it; set the baking dish in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven from one-half to three-fourths of an hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

Children's Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess

Another Visitor to Jerry's Roof
Some people labor seems toirk.
While others dearly love to work.
—Old Mother Nature.

PETER RABBIT found that Mr. Water Snake was in the habit of taking a sunbath and nap every pleasant day on the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house, and he found that Jerry didn't mind it at all and never disturbed Mr. Water Snake in the least. Then one day when he chanced to be over at the Smiling Pool, Peter discovered another visitor on the roof of Jerry's house. This visitor surprised him quite as much as had Mr. Water Snake. It was Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle.

Peter was quite used to seeing Turtles taking sunbaths, and when he saw Mrs. Snapper climbing out on the roof of Jerry's house he thought she was climbing up there to take a sunbath. He hardly gave her a glance. But when he looked over a second time he saw that Mrs. Snapper was crawling about all over that roof as if she were looking for something. Then he became interested. Finally, at a certain spot on the roof, Mrs. Snapper went to work. From where he sat Peter could see that she was making a hole in that roof of rushes and mud.

Peter certainly was surprised then. "Now what is she about?" thought he. "What is she trying to dig down into Jerry's house for? If she wants to get into his house why doesn't she go in the same way he does under water? She can stay under water as long as she pleases and I should think she could go right through his tunnel."

Then another thought came to Peter. Mrs. Snapper was big. She was very big. He realized as he looked at her that she couldn't possibly go through one of Jerry Muskrat's tunnels. She was too broad for that.

"So that's it, said he, talking to himself. "She can't get in through Jerry's tunnel, so she's digging her way in through the roof. But what is she doing it for? That is what I cannot understand."

Mrs. Snapper was too far away for Peter to ask questions, so all he could do was to sit and watch. He saw that she had chosen one of the oldest parts of the roof and she kept right on working as if she had something very important on her mind. Mr. Water Snake came for his usual daily sunbath, but seeing Mrs. Snapper at work there, decided that he didn't want a sunbath that day and swam away.

Mrs. Snapper continued to work and work, and Peter continued to watch and watch. By and by Mrs. Snapper had that hole deep enough so that she was half out of sight. Then she seemed to grow tired of working and for a long time appeared to be doing nothing. "She must be tired out," thought Peter, "and is resting." You know Peter himself is always ready to rest. The sun was warm, it was very quiet, and so presently Peter dozed some more. Finally he took a real nap.

Peter awoke with a start. Just for a wee part of a minute he couldn't think where he was. Then he remembered, and hastily looked over to the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house. Mrs. Snapper the Snapping Turtle was busy again. But now she seemed to be filling that hole in instead of digging it deeper. It was all very puzzling. Finally she waddled down to the edge of the water, looked all around, then dived in and Peter saw no more of her. Peter waited around hoping Mrs. Snapper would come near enough for him to ask questions of her. When she didn't come he looked for Jerry Muskrat. He was anxious to tell Jerry what Mrs. Snapper had been doing on the roof of that house. But Jerry must have been taking a nap somewhere, for not so much as a hair of him did Peter see. It began to look as if his curiosity would have to go unsatisfied.

For in the war they lost their Jack
And hold no Royal flushes.

FAMOUS WORDS OF FAMOUS MEN.
John D. Rockefeller: Oil's well that oils well.
Patrick Henry: Give me liberty or something just as good.
Elbert H. Gary: To pie and ice cream I attribute the increase in crime.
Henry Ford: There's a sucker and a Ford born every minute.
Calvin Coolidge: Save the pennies and the dollars will do the rest.
Albert B. Fall: Rockefeller was right.
Bill Tilden: Write it on ice.

Jack Dempsey. Where there's a Will's there's a way to dodge him.
Nero: Keep the Rome fires burning.

STATE SONGS.
While the Sidewalks of New York leaped into popularity overnight at the late Democratic convention, the Empire State will never rival Virginia, Kentucky or Indiana as a "sing" state. Paul Dresser while a native of Indiana probably spent the greater part of his life in little old New York. But when Paul felt the urge to write a home song did he get his inspiration from the banks of Bronnix far away? Not so. It was the little old Wabash for Paul!

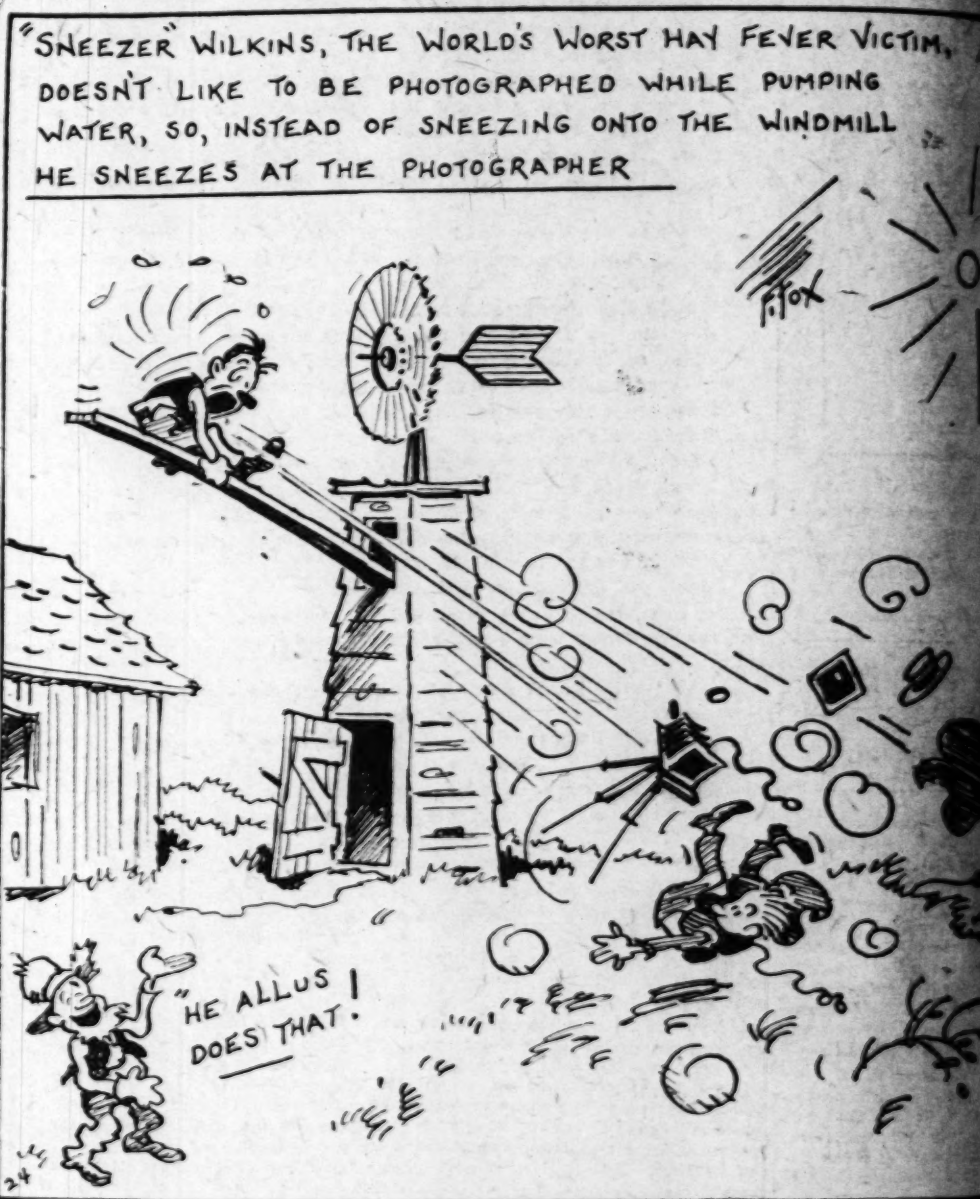

Some of these days we are going to put a clothes pin on our nose and see if we can't get an inspiration out of the banks of the River des Peres, where we used to wander through the wildwood in our childhood and catch crawfish and malaria.
